Eagles, Ospreys, Crows
Mr. Morgan's Corsair Sails
Mr. Felitto's Taxi Speaks
Mr. Bryant Would Jump

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN ALBERTA'S huge Jasper Park, Fred Brewster, a Rocky Mountain guide, watches eagles, and ospreys, also called "fish hawks," sitting on the high limbs of a tree, eagles at the top, ospreys below, and still lower down plain crows, all watching the lake.

An osprey drops, brings up a fish. Two eagles pursue; the frightened osprey drops the fish. The eagles try to catch it, usually fail. The crows, flying close to the surface in a body, never fail, always get the falling fish and enjoy it.

There you have our civilization upside down. With us, those nearest the ground get the least, those next above get a little more, and those at the very top get practically everything.

Perhaps we can change that situation in the "New Era," as the birds have changed it in far away Alberta, and enable those near the ground to get the big share, the semi-little men a trifle higher up the next biggest share, while the eagle men on the top branch almost starve to death. Genuinely earnest "cracking down" might accomplish that.

J. Pierpont Morgan, of Broad and Wall Streets, ordered his big yacht, Corsair, to his front door on East Island, and will cross for a short vacation in England.

Once such a trip might have aroused envy, but no more. The traveling salesman, the "lady buyer" for a department store, almost anybody may cross on a bigger, faster, finer boat than the Corsair at a very reasonable price.

The wise socialism is that which gives to the big crowd bigger and better ships, parks and hotels than any individual, no matter how rich, could afford for himself.

Also, among Americans of the right kind, a man and woman take pride in improving their own little house or boat, wasting no time in foolish envy of others. There is no real happiness of possession, except in what we earn and what we have.

Samuel Felitto sat at the wheel of his taxicab yesterday, waiting for his customer to come out of a restaurant on Fulton street, New York; little boys were as thick around him as flies around a sugar bowl. They stood on the running board, put their heads through the windows of the taxi, and all faces, including that of Samuel Felitto, expressed profound happiness. The taxi radio was running and giving full details, inning by inning, play by play, of the great "all-star baseball game" that fifty-four thousand were watching in New York's Polo Grounds.

The customer appeared as the broadcaster roared "Medwick makes a home run, scoring three." The radio thunder of the fifty-four thousand "fans" could not drown the yells of the small taxi-cab audience, shrieking with delight.

There is a real miracle, and a very great marvel. Men become accustomed to everything, but the conquest of time, space and gravitation still surprises them.

Everything would run smoothly if all the United States representatives and senators felt as G. A. Bryant, of West Virginia, feels. A candidate for Congress, his platform reads:

"I am behind President Roosevelt all the way. I'll jump off the top of the Washington monument if he wants me to."

A solid House and Senate like that would make Fascism unnecessary.

Mr. Bryant, educated as a civil engineer, and a professional newspaperman, recently "operator of peanut and popcorn stands," knows what depression means, and says:

"I am entering the campaign without a dime, and will be compelled to hitch-hike and 'thumb' my way around."

We learn from adversity.

The Vatican paper, Osservatore Romano, properly rebukes the Hitler government for refusing religious consolation in their last hours to Catholics executed in the recent Nazi executions. Osservatore says:

"Religious assistance in their last hours was refused, on the ground that the arrested persons were unworthy of it."

That will sound strange in America, where even murderers of all denominations, Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, are attended in their last moments, and at public expense, by a priest, clergyman or rabbi, as the case may be.

Any man, whatever his religion, Mohammedan, Taoist, Buddhist, no matter what, would be allowed here to receive religious consolation at the last moment, even though he had committed the worst crime, and

MRS. FABER BATTLES TO SAVE SON

A fight to save Abe Faber's life, to the end that the state may take it in the electric chair in forfeit for murder, was begun today.

Faber, reported in serious condition after spurning food and exercise for many days, will be examined late today by Dr. Clarence K. Benson, Dedham Jail physician, officials announced.

At the same time, his transfer from a cell in the pit to the jail hospital was sought by his parents, who are convinced he is nearer death than the electric chair that awaits him.

PARENTS PLEAD

Jail officials made their move so Faber will not cheat justice.

His weeping parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Faber, prepared a plea for their son's transfer to the hospital, living in the faint hope that he might live to see his motion for a new trial granted.

Faber ate a few mouthfuls of his oatmeal breakfast this morning and pushed the plate away. Later, his guards prevailed upon him to exercise in the corridor of the pit but after walking listlessly up and down for a few minutes, he returned to his cell and reclined on his cot.

At her home, 148A Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, Faber's mother announced this morning she would personally appeal to Sheriff Samuel H. Capen to transfer her son to the sunlight and fresh air of the jail hospital. She said:

"I am afraid of what is hap-

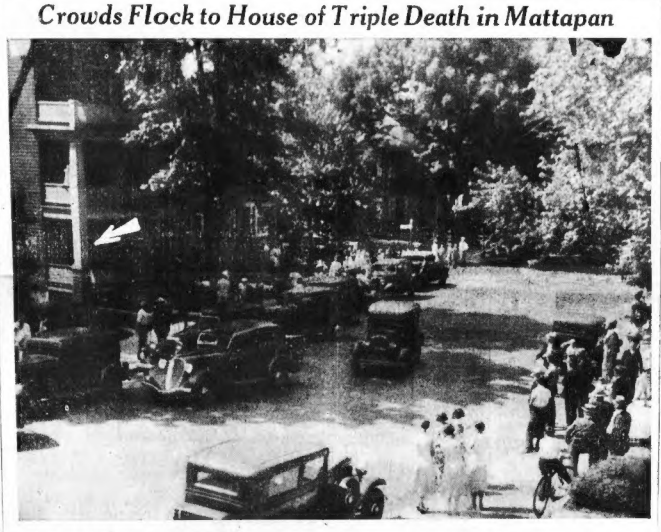
Crowds Flock to House of Triple Death in Mattapan



Shortly after the bodies of John I. Gidney, Ernest R. Borgeson and Mrs. Borgeson were found in the "house of death" in River street, Mattapan, crowds of curious started to gather outside the three-story apartment building. The arrow points to the front porch of the apartment in which the bodies were found. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

POSTMAN KILLS GIRL, HUSBAND AND SELF

Surprising his daughter and her husband in a reconciliation which he had forbidden, a mail carrier shot the couple to death in his home at 594 River street, Mattapan, today, wounded their infant daughter probably fatally, and killed himself, according to the police theory of the tragedy.

The dead:

JOHN I. GIDNEY, 55, widower, a mail carrier attached to Mattapan post office.

ERNEST R. BORGESON, 20, unemployed son-in-law, of Tesla street, Mattapan.

MRS. MARGARET GIDNEY BORGESON, 19.

At the city hospital is Estelle Borgeson, six months old, shot through the head and under treatment by Dr. Donald Munroe, specialist, who saved the life of "Ace" Bailey, Toronto hockey player.

BODIES FOUND 7 HOURS AFTER TRAGEDY

The murders and suicide occurred between 12:20 and 12:50 a. m., according to neighbors who heard the shots but did not investigate.

Seven hours later Frederick Hitching, 25, detected the odor of gas from the first floor flat in the three-family house. He was unable to obtain an answer from the occupants.

His wife, Mrs. Helen V. Hitching, 22, advised calling Mattapan postoffice to see if Gidney had reported for work. When postoffice officials replied that he had not, Hitching asked the top floor neighbor, Ludwig J. Peterson, 66, to find a policeman.

Near Mattapan square, 100 yards away, Peterson picked up Patrolmen Arthur L. Pelletier and Andrew A. Smith in a cruiser car. They forced open a door and discovered the tragedy.

Sprawled in his own blood across the sill between the hallway and dining room was the body of Borgeson. He had been shot through the back of the head, the police said.

Choking fumes of illuminating gas filled the house.

Provincetown Ready for Largest Armada

Provincetown, July 11—This ancient sea town has the welcome sign out as it awaits the arrival of Uncle Sam's war dogs, the greatest armada to visit these waters in the past quarter century.

Thirty-two ships and 8000 blue-jackets of the naval scouting force, constituting one-third of the entire United States fleet, will steam into port in a parade stretching out for two miles. They will remain in these waters several weeks in war games off the Cape shore.

A prelude to the fleet's visit was the battle staged last night, 100 miles off the Cape, by the combined scouting and battle forces.

The combined fleet today will assemble in Narragansett Bay for a naval review by Admiral Joseph Mason Reeves on the U. S. S. New Mexico.

Provincetown is charged with excitement, with several thousand

50 FLEE FIRE IN ROXBURY

More than 50 employes of the South Side Dye House, at Norfolk avenue and Langdon street, Roxbury, today were driven to the street by the rapidly-spreading flames of a mysterious fire.

Between 75 and 80 were at work in the two sections of the one-story brick structure when heavy billows of biting smoke began to roll out of one of the dye rooms.

The cause of the fire was undetermined, but damage was estimated at $4000, much of it to garments in the place. The plant is owned by Gadzil Bros. The blaze attracted a large crowd.

French Troops Massed on German Border

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
Copyright, 1934, International News Service

Berlin, July 11—The French army has been heavily reinforced on the German frontier, Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, in London, appears already to have gained considerable English sympathy for his plan to weave a steel net around Germany.

These two facts today remained depressing reflections for this country after 12 days have passed without the public learning any new details of the plot which cost the lives of an undetermined number of Germans and without any hint of the dead.

International News Service learned today that Barthou's complete plan consists of three parts, first a renewal of the old, or "West Locarno pact with the Soviet Union as a new guarantor of Franco-German frontier.

"RING OF STEEL"

But of the two major facts the second is by far the more important. The French army's frontier reinforcements were precautionary measures and no sober observer believes France ready to attack Germany this moment. Barthou's seemingly successful diplomatic labors appear to Germany's leaders today much more dangerous. For if Barthou succeeds with his plan, Germany will be bound hand and foot so thoroughly that in the eyes of France no preventative war will be necessary in order to render her harmless.

The second is the proposed new "East" Locarno pact among France,

Jacksonville, Fla., July 11 (AP)—A tornado struck here late last night, injuring at least seven persons, one seriously, and causing $500,000 damage to property.

1 DEAD, 1 DYING IN CAR CRASH

One man was killed, another was probably fatally injured, and a third seriously injured today in a head-on collision in Wynn street, Burlington.

All were taken to the Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn, in a police ambulance.

Dead:

Harold E. Atkins, 35, single, of Nichols street, Wilmington.

Dying:

Robert Spencer, 31, married, of Maple street, Wilmington, who was riding with Atkins.

Also injured:

Thomas Murray, 28, single, superintendent of streets in Burlington, and driver of the second crash car.

Murray, according to hospital attendants, has a broken right leg and numerous cuts and abrasions. Spencer is unconscious, and has a fractured jaw and multiple lacerations.

Several motorists stopped, but let the broken and unconscious forms of the victims in the road.

Police asked some why they hadn't taken the men to the hospital. The answer was:

"We didn't want to get blood on our cars."

DOLLFUSS STARTS NEW DRIVE AGAINST NAZIS IN AUSTRIA

DEATH DECREED FOR USE OF EXPLOSIVES IN RIOTS

Chancellor Follows Mussolini's Plan and Takes More Cabinet Jobs; Assumes Police Power

By Associated Press

Vienna, July 11—Engelbert Dollfuss, Austria's fighting little chancellor, announced a huge new drive against Nazis today, after concentrating in his own hands all the military and police power of the nation.

The death penalty will be dealt out for the mere possession of explosives, Dollfuss announced, in an effort to stop widespread outrages.

In a cabinet shakeup, Dollfuss presented the resignation of the whole group to President Wilhelm Miklas and then submitted a new list for Miklas' approval.

Dollfuss appeared determined to stamp out the whole Nazi movement in Austria.

ASSUMES MANY JOBS

Taking a leaf from the notebook of his neighbor and friendly protector, Benito Mussolini, Dollfuss will add several cabinet portfolios to his active duties.

He will be chancellor, foreign minister, minister of defense, public security, and agriculture.

All military and police power in Austria will be concentrated in his hands through the defense and security posts.

A communique asserted the step was necessary for peace and order and to wipe out "the last vestiges of treasonable movement."

Almost daily bombings and other acts of terrorism have kept the government nervous for months. Austrian Nazis were blamed by Dollfuss supporters. They are bitter foes because of the chancellor's unrelenting opposition to a union with Germany.

WILL VISIT IL DUCE

In remaking the government, Dollfuss crippled the power of the Fascist Heimwehr, or home guard, which gained government favor by yeoman work during the bloody Socialist revolution in February, although previously no great lover of Dollfuss.

The Heimwehr leaders, Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, vice-chancellor, and Major Emil Fey, minister of public security, will remain in the government, but they will surrender power.

Prince Schonberg-Hartenstein, who was the only high ranking army man in the cabinet, drops out altogether, having declined to accept a portfolio in the new cabinet after surrendering the ministry of defense to Dollfuss.

The ministry for constitutional reform, Otto Ender, and Richard Reinhitz, minister without portfolio, are missing in the new alignment.

Dollfuss has accepted an invitation to take his family to Italy for a vacation at the end of this month as a guest of Mussolini.

Il Duce is firmly determined that an Austro-German alliance shall not take place under the Swastika and has given Dollfuss his warm backing.

Police Save Gandhi

London, July 11 (INS)—Police at Karachi, India, frustrated an attempt to attack Mahatma Ghandi, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from that city today. A man attempted to force his way with an axe into the Mehatta palace, the dispatch stated, but was arrested.

Now Is Time to Take New Deal Inventory, Says R. W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
DIPLOMATIST AND LAWYER

Mr. Child has just returned from Europe, where he visited practically every large country as an observer for the United States government. He has now become a regular contributor to the Boston Evening American. Watch for his articles.

What this country needs now is to take account of stock. Congress has gone off in a spray to fix the fences back home.

R. W. Child

The President is in the Navy now.

Fall elections draw near.

Partisan enmities and counter-charges are being made wherever the two party system remains with all its awkwardness and inaccuracy but with its good old American safeguard of preserving an opposition, though saints themselves run the country.

In Washington there is a heated lull hovering over the panting bureaucracy.

In the country the distant rumblings of the thunder of a campaign have begun.

Before the wind comes up and during this pause and while brainy fellows cannot reach the ear of a popular and persuasive President, and when economists are whispering and opposition orators are yelling figures—now is the time!

PRAISE FASHIONABLE

Now is the time to ask the good old questions:

"What have we got?"

"What did it cost?"

It is a fashionable, indeed a stylish thing in Washington, certainly in Congress and surely in the bureaucracy and probably everywhere else, to preface any such wide American demand by speaking of the courage, the decent action, the geniality, the efficiency of a distinguished President.

The next step, according to the latest Washington mode, is to accept graciously the invitation of those who, from their Federal jobs and Congressional seats, so patriotically support a President to whom jobs and seats are to be credited in toto. That invitation is to "engage only in CONSTRUCTIVE criticism." It is an insidious invitation, since nothing can be more dangerous to power than just and constructive criticism. Unjust and spiteful criticism is a bark without bite.

Compliments to the President have now become cheap perfumery atomized upon the real flowers of achievement now in the Presidential Washington hot-house. Constructive criticism cannot be the menace it may be made to the weeds and diseased plants among these achievements, or the weeds and tares around the old Constitution, until the facts are out.

FACTS NECESSARY

What we need in this hush is to have men without partisanship find out FACTS.

Facts are non-partisan. They should be equally welcome to a Fletcher or a Farley. They should be welcome to the managers of our distended national business and Heaven knows to us—whose pocketbooks or those of our children must sooner or later fill the deficits and whose liberties and right to property must sooner or later be appraised after this storm has gone.

Let us not allow sweet or ringing voices and radio receptions to give us narcotics. A government which is accused of "going professor" should be the first, we observers believe in Washington, to say "Fie for shame the old politicians who dealt in phrases; show us the fact-findings, hard-boiled, and dry-iced figures."

MUST BE REPAID

The professor-mind, no matter how generous in the open hand of helpfulness, must surely also be accountancy-minded when the tax payers are gave the wherewithal or must be assessed for it, say: "What does it cost?"

We, who belong to the United States are often rocked to sleep with the ideas that governments merely rub a magic bottle when money is needed, or that government is a paying business where "we stockholders" may get a dividend or that by taxing the rich we can get the ultimate burden off the backs of the poor.

Washington is full of such nonsense today. There is not half enough recognition in our Capital that "what is spent must be paid by you and me or our children. Every time a dollar is spent you and I or the children OWE IT, and there is no miracle which can produce a solution other than "pay, repudiate or go through bankruptcy."

As a starter let us ask the government to say, without any of this fol-de-rol about a "balanced" budget—

What does Uncle Sam—WE—owe?

How much has it increased in two years?

What exactly is the interest and service charge per capita which we taxpayers must carry?

How much more do we owe in principal and interest, on top of this, for local and other taxes?

In the morning-after what is the whole bill?

That will be a starter. There is nothing partisan in this question.

"WHAT DID IT ACTUALLY COST"

How much must be raised by taxation—awkward and stifling methods of taxation—to pay the piper?

If the piper is not paid there will be no more pipers—a government which ultimately cannot pay, cannot borrow—as some European governments have learned today.

And finally, they can only tax us, not more, because taxation curls up endeavor in the end and sucks all the blood from the corpse of production.

With these principles in mind, the country needs an audit.

But the audit is accurate it should be just as useful to Farley, who as Democratic National Chairman defends, as to Fletcher, the Republican Chairman who attacks.

This audit is much more vital to the country than anything either man may say. The audit is not political at all. It is just some plain UNPERFUMED AND UNTAINTED TRUTHS.

TRUE BILLS AIM IN BANK PROBE

Five indictments, in addition to others already returned, are sought by U. S. Attorney Francis J. W. Ford in connection with the probe of the closed Boston-Continental National Bank by the grand jury, in session today at the Federal Building.

The outer room was filled with witnesses, most of them former employes of the closed bank and others who had dealings with the bank in securing loans on mortgages.

Arthur F. Bickford, auditor, will begin hearings at 2 p. m. tomorrow, on the suit brought by Receiver James H. Brennan, to recover on two bonds approximating $200,000 given by the Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland.

The defense of the bonding company is that the directors of the bank had knowledge of irregularities attributed to certain officers and employes, and refuses to reimburse the bank on the bonds.

WOMEN PARADE FOR WEST END PLAYFIELD

Filthy Streets Menace to Children, Leaders to Tell Mayor

Fifteen hundred West End mothers marched on City Hall today to keep an appointment with Mayor Mansfield.

Protesting against "the littered, unclean streets upon which our children are forced to play these hot, summer days," their gay attire was in sharp contrast to their earnest errand.

Indignantly and in unison, a group o fthem, chosen as spokesmen, attempted to present, in graphic detail, the health-menacing, unsanitary conditions existing on the streets of Boston's West End.

The mayor, meanwhile, was endeavoring to extract the salient facts in this hub-bub of shrill-voiced complaint.

The meeting with the mayor, who has just returned from a vacation spent with Mrs. Mansfield in the White Mountains, was arranged as the result of a letter to him, formulated at a meeting of the West End Improvement League and signed by more than 1500 irate residents of this section.

"STREETS FILTHY"

The signatures were obtained by 2000 children living in the West End, where, according to Mrs. George D. Shaw of Poplar street, wife of a property-owner in the vicinity, "rubbish and filth is allowed to accumulate on the streets, careless housewives fling garbage out of the windows and garbage-cans are a minus quantity."

Mrs. Shaw continued:

"My own children are grown up and married, but my little grandson lives with us and, speaking for West End mothers, I think these deplorable conditions should be improved. And if this matter of child welfare does not concern public officials, they might be reminded that, as property-owners, we in the West End are entitled to an clean-swept streets a s are property owners in other sections of the city."

MRS. SHAW LEADER

According to Mrs. Shaw, who is leading this drive on City Hall composed of women who are unanimously unusual in spirit if not in physique, the city watercart has cleaned West End streets only once this summer as against last year's daily service.

Assisting her in marshalling her feminine forces, which assembled at Milton and Poplar streets preparatory to marching to the City Hall, are Mrs. John Petersen of Poplar street, Mrs. Charles Knudson of Lynde street and Mrs. Rose Drisko of Milton street.

Mrs. riDsko, pointing out that there is only one playground in the neighborhood and that many blocks away, recalled that a little girl was killed a week or so ago, crossing Charles street to get there.

Miss Britton Secret Bride

Dorothy Britton, Miss Universe of 1927, an old master at secret marriages, was revealed today as the bride of Clifford Parliman, now in Newburgh (N. Y.) County jail for failure to pay back alimony to his first wife, Gladys Walton. Parliman and Miss Walton's marriage in 1929 was performed in an airplane over Roosevelt Field. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

BEAUTY QUEEN REVEALED AS SECRET BRIDE

Arrest of Husband Bares Wedding of Dorothy Britton

By Universal Service

Newburgh, N. Y., July 11—Dorothy Britton, the "Miss Universe" of 1927, with whom secret marriages are getting to be a habit, was revealed today as the bride of Clifford Parliman, real estate man of Clement Falls, near Newburgh.

The revelation came as Parliman was held in the county jail here for alleged failure to pay $420 back alimony to his first wife, Gladys Walton, actress.

Miss Walton had divorced him for alleged undue familiarity with "Miss Universe," once described as the most beautiful show girl in the world. When and where the marriage of Miss Britton and Parliman took place was not revealed.

Its secrecy was in contrast to the marriage of Parliman to Miss Walton, whose nuptials were celebrated in an airplane over Roosevelt field in 1929, a novelty that attracted wide attention in those days.

But it was in the style of Miss Britton, who was married for three years to the late Edward C. Harding, a childhood sweetheart, before she revealed her secret. Parliman, once the wealthy owner of the House of Parliman, real estate firm, has been working recently as a civil engineer on a real estate development near here.

According to the new Mrs. Parliman, her husband's first wife has never forgiven him for suing her mother for $100,000 heart balm. That, she declared today was the real reason for Parliman's alimony trouble. And in the county jail, Parliman wondered when he would get out.

DUMAINE HEIR IS HAPPY WITH "MILLION-DOLLAR" BRIDE

FATHER KISSES GIRL WHO WED IN SECRET

Honeymoon Apartment on 2nd Floor Pleases Couple

By PEGGY DOYLE
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Manchester, N. H., July 11—"I've got a million-dollar wife," said young Chris Dumaine, apprentice mill worker at the Amoskeag Mills here, as he mounted the steps, three at a time, to his modest second floor rear, honeymoon apartment, at 353 Lincoln street.

At the door he was greeted by his pretty French bride, in a pink crepe de chine negligee, and the irresistible fragrance of broiling steak and hash brown potatoes.

"Honey," she murmured, as she kissed him and "Darling," he returned in like manner.

All of which seemed to indicate that conditions are just about perfect thus far in the Dumaine honeymoon menage.

News had just leaked out of their secret marriage Saturday, with Attorney Walter Dulebury of Derry officiating as justice of the peace. And it was of far-flung interest, since the mill worker bridegroom happens to be the son of Frederic Dumaine, treasurer of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company and director of probably a dozen of New England's most important business enterprises.

FATHER KISSED BRIDE

Young Dumaine is about as handsome as his father is influential. A clean-cut young fellow, with frank blue eyes and a splendid smile, he seemed not in the least worried about the outcome of his romantic decision.

"Tell you what," he said, gaily, "everybody's people overestimate them. Fact is, my father may know a lot of lovely girls whom I ought to like, but he couldn't very well know the one I love until he met her.

"Now that he's met her, he's forgiven me, kissed her and given us his blessing. Dad's smart, you know. He could see there was no complaint about anything I've done, once he knew Yvonne."

Yvonne is the former Yvonne Primeau, assistant manager of Manchester's new Hotel Caron, which is owned and managed by her brother-in-law. She is the daughter of Mrs. Emma Doussas of 16 Walnut street and, as preparation in the making of a home, she has had the advantage of many years of training in her own home.

SECRECY IN WEDDING

Briefly, her mother has had three families. Two of her husbands died and Yvonne has been a dominating influence in the home where there are six lively youngsters in the family.

The wedding ceremony took place Saturday, surrounded by secrecy. The prospective bride and groom had breakfast at the Dumaine home, after which Attorney Walter Pillsbury of Derry, as justice of the peace, performed the ceremony.

On Sunday, the young couple visited Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Dumaine's estate at Groton and it was there they speedily won the parental blessing.

his job, which is hard work, and has made a splendid impression on the other workingmen of the concern.

"Honeymoon?" he laughed, "Say, lady, I'm a workingman. Nowadays, a fellow is lucky enough to get the girl he wants, without having the chance to take her just where he wants to.

"We'll pop down and see my folks at Groton over some weekends, and when I get my vacation in the fall, we'll try to rig up a little honeymoon. It may be short, but it will be darn sweet."

"Honey," she said.

"Darling," he answered.

And exit the press.

Explorers Held in China, Report

Peiping, July 11 (INS)—Dr. Sven Hedin, noted Swedish explorer, and other members of his expedition into Chinese Turkestan, have been captured by the forces of General Ma Chung Ying, according to reports reaching here today. They are being carried toward Aksu, the stronghold of General Ma.

Reward Offered for Lost Trunk

An appeal for the return of an automobile trunk and its contents, lost from a car parked in the rear of 11 Queensberry street, Boston, last Sunday night, was made today by the owner, who promises a liberal reward to the finder.

The trunk contained an instrument of no value to anyone but the owner. Anyone having knowledge of the trunk may call Kenmore 7650 and no questions will be asked.

WOMAN, READY FOR CHAIR, IS REPRIEVED

By Universal Service

Ossining, N. Y., July 11—Kneeling in prayer, Mrs. Anna Antonio, convicted murderess, was interrupted in her devotions by the sound of a soft, motherly voice at the door of her cell in Sing Sing yesterday.

The voice was that of Mrs. Lewis E. Lawes, wife of the warden of the penitentiary. Mrs. Antonio glanced appealingly at the warden's wife. There was a moment of tense silence.

TEARS OF JOY

Then Mrs. Lawes told the anguished prisoner:

"Warden Lawes has just informed me that Governor Lehman has granted you another reprieve . . . You will not have to die in the electric chair Thursday night . . . A stay has been granted you until August 9 . . ."

Mrs. Antonio, 38, who was found guilty of hiring two men to kill her husband Salvatore, began to weep. Then a great light of joy shone through her tears. She sobbed:

"Thank God my prayers are answered . . . I am ever so thankful . . . I have never lost hope."

THIRD REPRIEVE

Governor Lehman's third reprieve to her, it was expected, meant the possibility of a new trial . . . of hope . . . of life itself . . . for the woman whose hair had been shorn, a few weeks ago, to provide a contact for the electrodes of the death chair.

In announcing the third reprieve, Gov. Lehman in Albany said:

"I have asked Chief Judge Cuthbert W. Pound to convene the court of appeals in extraordinary session so that it may be definitely determined whether there is a right of appeal from an order of a judge denying a motion for a new trial.

"It is evident that the Governor can not perform the duties placed upon him by the constitution until this legal question is finally decided."

The reprieve to Mrs. Antonio carried with it a reprieve to Vincent Saetta, 34, and Samuel Feraci, 43, sentenced to death with her

Hunger Aids in Sherburne Hunt

Greensboro Bend, Vt., July 11 (AP)—Hunger was believed today to have driven Harely Sherburne, alleged wife-slayer, from the unsettled fastnesses of the Green Mountains to the towns along the St. Johnsbury Highway.

Sheriff Frederick A. Flint and a posse, who have trekked the hills in search of Sherburne for five days, came here yesterday, upon receiving a report that a man with two fingers missing, had been seen at a Greensboro Bend Farm.

Prisoner Escapes Running for Ball

Raleigh, N. C., July 11—A long fly in a baseball game at a highway prison camp helped Dallas Brown, convict, to escape. Dallas was playing in the outfield when he started running back to catch the ball. The ball landed, but Dallas kept running.

Tarzan and His Star Can't Make a Go of Love

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER LUPE VELEZ

All good things must end—even the loves of Lupe Velez and "her Johnny" Weissmuller. Lupe says she'll seek a divorce because of mental cruelty.

Los Angeles, July 11—Tempestuous Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller have come to the parting of ways.

The Mexican stormy petrel of screendom declared that she and the brawny "Tarzan" of the films were unable to make a go of married life and that she will file suit for divorce charging mental cruelty.

Her suit against the former Olympic swimming star is to be filed immediately, Miss Velez added. She admitted sadly:

"We simply couldn't make a go of it. I thought if I went away on a personal appearance tour it would give us a chance to get off one another's nerves.

"But Johnny followed me in an airplane and then, after talking it over, we decided our marriage couldn't last.

"We still love each other. Differences in temperament however, have caused the rift. We have been very unhappy lately and life has been a series of quarrels.

"This time, we have definitely come to the parting of the ways."

In 1932 Weismuller's former wife, Bobby Arnet, secured a divorce.

JOHNSON ASKS TO QUIT AS NRA BOSS

By Universal Service

Washington, July 11—General Hugh S. Johnson disclosed here that he has asked President Roosevelt to relieve him as NRA administrator and to appoint a commission to administer the Recovery Act.

Speaking in a calm, off-hand manner to newspapermen in his office, upon his return from an eight-day rest in New York and Long Island, Johnson revealed that he had made his request in a letter to the President just before the Chief Executive started on his vacation cruise.

Johnson, one of the most dynamic figures in the new deal, let it be known his departure would not be immediate. He said the President has not answered his letter, and that he does not know what decision the President will make.

It will be a month or two before the "emergency phase" of the NRA is past, Johnson said, thus allowing its activities to be turned over to a commission. Here Johnson interjected:

"If I could avoid being a member of the commission, I'd like to do it. Probably I will stay until Congress meets in January, although I'd like to avoid that."

Washington, July 11 (AP)—One big code for 450 small industries is expected to emerge from NRA'S hopper momentarily. This code will touch only such basic standards as wages, hours and prohibition of child labor. It will not contain price fixing.

General Hugh S. Johnson hoped to promulgate the new code before leaving today on a combination vacation-speaking tour westward.

ELY TO AWARD EIGHT PRIZE PLUMS

Five prize appointments and the naming of three members to the new liquor board were in the hands of Governor Ely today.

The liveliest contest developed for the post of public trustee of the Boston Elevated Railway to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of General Charles H. Cole, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. State Auditor Francis X. Hurley, former Senator James J. Twohig, former Mayor Michael C. O'Neill of Everett, and many others have been mentioned.

Due to the resignation of Edwin S. Smith, commissioner of labor and industries, that post was due to be filled. Other pending appointments included a third probate judge in Suffolk County; judge of the district court in Chelsea and commissioner of corrections in the event that predictions of Commissioner Frederick J. Dillon's appointment to probate court becomes a reality.

Patrol Races Here With Injured Man

The Coast Guard patrol boat Thetis, with William Carr, an injured fisherman of Oakdare Road, Reading, aboard, was racing toward Boston today. She took the man off the Bay State Fishing Company's steam trawler Cumber, 28 miles south of Cape Sable, N. S., this morning and is expected here about 9 p. m.

The Thetis was ordered to make the 200 mile dash to the Cumber after a report by radio. Carr will be transferred to the Marine Hospital on landing here.

THREE SLAIN IN MATTAPAN

dining room and a rear room, the 10-year-old Mrs. Borgeson lay, her face covered with blood which had gushed from a bullet hole over her left eye, fired so close that powder marks were discovered in the skin.

In a rear bedroom lay Gidney, shot through the temple and with the death revolver at his side. A wall bracket was open in this room and from it gas was pouring.

In her crib, between the front room and the dining room, lay the infant, her head pierced by a single bullet, which had entered the back of the skull and emerged almost in the center of her forehead.

The baby was unconscious, but still breathing. She was hurried to the Boston Sanitarium, also in River street, where Dr. Walter Hendricks worked over her for 20 minutes and then sent her to City Hospital, where there are better facilities.

Police said they learned from neighbors and fellow workers of Gidney that the Borgeson couple had been separated for several months, that the mail carrier had forbidden his daughter to see her husband again, threatening to disown her if she did.

HEARD SHOTS, SCREAMS

Neighbors said they say Gidney leave the house last night, shortly after 7 o'clock, and less than an hour later they saw Borgeson enter the apartment where the daughter lived with her father and baby.

Sometime after midnight, Mrs. Hitching, who had retired at 9:30, heard quarreling downstairs and then heard a woman scream, she told police. She was dozing off again, she said, when she heard another scream and then a shot.

Other shots followed within a short space of time, she said, but she was only half awake and fell asleep again.

POLICE REENACT TRAGEDY

Other neighbors said they also heard what sounded either like shots or the backfirings of an automobile. They placed the time as between 12:20 and 12:50.

Police said their reconstruction of the tragedy was that Gidney arrived home about midnight, or earlier than he had been expected, surprised the unwelcome son-in-law in the house to which he had forbidden entrance, quarreled with his daughter and her husband and, perhaps, was afflicted.

Producing a revolver, Gidney may have threatened his son-in-law with the weapon, police believe, bringing the first scream from his daughter.

Then came an interval of more quarreling, with Gidney suddenly becoming so enraged that he began firing.

GUN EMPTIED, RELOADED

Police found that the revolver, a 38-calibre, had been emptied once and that it then had been reloaded, and another shot, the sixth, fired.

Special Officer John Cloran took the gun and the empty shells to police headquarters for detailed examination.

Mrs. Borgeson was graduated from Hyde Park High School only a year ago last month and married Borgeson last fall. The couple lived in Tesla street until she moved in with her father.

Recently, police said, Borgeson has been attempting to win his wife back and her father had expressed himself openly against any reconciliation.

DOG MISSES DEATH

Gidney had been a mail carrier for nearly 30 years. He was appointed a substitute carrier on May 29, 1906, and received a regular appointment on Sept. 14, 1912.

He formerly lived with his wife in Rexford street, Mattapan. She died two years ago, and last fall he took the first-floor flat in today's house of tragedy.

The pet airdale dog, Caesar, was the only occupant of the flat to escape the bullets, the dog having been left out on the back veranda for the night. He was taken in charge today by Edwin Sanders of the Animal Rescue League.

Narcotics Burned

New York, July 11 (INS)—The police department today announced the destruction by fire of more than $250,000 worth of narcotics seized within the past year. The drugs were burned in the furnace of headquarters building.

SHIRLEY TO GET $1000 A WEEK

Hollywood, July 11—Shirley Temple, the year's biggest movie discovery, has just had a raise in salary. The 5-year-old star is raised from $150 to $1,000 a week.

More than that, Fox Film Corporation will in future handle the child star's business affairs with the intention of so investing and protecting her earnings that the little lady will be moderately wealthy long before the studio's seven-year contract on her services expires.

The girl was taken to court by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Temple, to ask Judge Marshall McComb to give legal approval to her contract of employment, and a second contract granting a movie agent 10 per cent. of her pay. But Judge McComb balked at the size of the agent's cut, which he directed to be halved and the agent said he would withdraw from Miss Temple's affairs first.

In surrounding the light-haired Shirley with precautions for her health and against her financial exploitation, the studio will see that the child is not loaned to other studios.

Kiss Tells Police He's Drunk

If a man tries to kiss a policeman, he's drunk.

That's one of the rules by which Patrolman Robert K. Stevens of Newton is guided in his business of arresting people, he testified today in Newton court.

Gaitona Freoli, 45, of Chapel street, Newton, was before the court on charges of operating under the influence and drunkenness. He had been arrested by Stevens.

"How do you know he was drunk?" the court asked.

"Well," said the officer, "he was boisterous, and he tried to kiss me twice in the wagon."

Freoli was sentenced to one month on the drunken driving charge because it was his second offence, and he was fined $10 on the drunkenness count.

TRIO SEIZED IN DOPE RAID

Two men and a woman were arrested today in a spectacular dope raid that aroused the Glenville section of Allston.

A door and driveral windows were smashed in with sledge hammers, pinch bars and other tools by Federal Agents Charles Burrows and John Culhane.

They said they found Samuel Wasserstein, 41, occupant of the apartment, and Samuel Sapoenack, 38, of Highland avenue, Winthrop, lying on the floor. Miss Evelyn Wine, 42, who gave a Glenville avenue address, was in a sleeping position on a chair. All three were arrested, Wasserstein for unlawful possession of drugs and the others for being present.

Cars are Worth Too Much to take Chances on Oil!

Quality Pays for Itself... in Long Service, Low Upkeep

HIGHER SPEEDS, higher temperatures, closer-fitting parts make today's engine twice as dependent on oil as the motors of a few years ago.

That's why it's real economy to standardize on Mobiloil. It won't thin out dangerously under heat. It stays tough in the thinnest film.

Your car not only runs better as a result—it lasts longer, too. You get the maximum protection against scoring, gumming, carbon, power loss. You stay out of the shop because Mobiloil stays on the job.

Four out of five repair bills start because of lubrication. Cut that proportion down with Mobiloil. Stop at the nearest Mobiloil sign. Dealers sell from an approved chart which shows the exact grade for your make of car.

FILPRUF PROTECTS YOU. Mobiloil is the only oil sold in the bottle with the lock top shown at right. You get the highest quality — guarded by lock and key all the way from the refinery to you. No extra charge for this protection. Look for the Filpruf Bottle when you buy.

U. S. TO HASTEN TRIAL OF TWO BANK HEADS

The United States government's move to combine for a single trial the cases of Daniel C. Mulloney, former president of the defunct Federal National Bank, and John A. Deery, former head of the closed Salem Trust Company, is part of a plan to "clean up" the Mulloney affair in all its ramifications.

This was learned today from Assistant U. S. Attorney General Irving G. McCann, who is prosecuting the bank cases here. He said that the decision to "clean the slate" was reached at a conference in Washington, with Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan.

Judge Hiram Bingham, senior justice of the federal circuit court of appeals, has appointed Judge James M. Morton, Jr., of Fall River to hear the government's motion. Arguments are scheduled for Friday, with counsel for Deery and Mulloney opposing the single trial plan.

If McCann's motion is granted, the pair will go to trial on September 11, in federal court here. It will be the second time in four months that Mulloney must face charges of violating the banking laws. He was acquitted of misapplication of bank funds on May 25.

Deery is now serving a term in the Essex County House of Correction at Salem and on its expiration must serve another term in State's Prison, Charlestown.

Women Club Leaders Praise Hearst for Clean Film Fight

Two Boston women leaders—one for years an authority on social welfare not only locally but nationally—the other president of one of the largest Catholic women's organizations in the East—today expressed their approval of an editorial written by William Randolph Hearst for the elimination of immoral motion pictures and, in its stead, the presentation of clean wholesome films.

They are Miss Mary E. Driscoll, assistant state chairman of the Better Homes In America, and Mrs. Cornelius G. Flynn, president of the League of Catholic Women.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst's editorial on the motion picture situation is indeed worthy of imitation by all of the newspapers of the country," Miss Mary E. Driscoll, assistant state chairman of the Better Homes in America association, stated today.

Miss Mary E. Driscoll

Miss Driscoll said:

"Too long have we waited before taking action to eliminate from the screen, suggestions and indirect influences that do so obviously tend to destroy much that we have tried to build up in the eyes of youth, of the beauty of home life and the purity of woman.

"Indeed, it is time that we emphasized over and over again that virtue still is an asset among our women and that family life is still beautiful and that happiness is only found through these channels."

Mrs. Cornelius G. Flynn, president of the League of Catholic women, declared that the editorials of Mr. Hearst showed a "wonderful attitude" and a complete understanding of the situation.

CLEANUP WELCOMED

Mrs. Flynn stated that her organization comprising of hundreds of Catholic women throughout the city would welcome such a move as outlined by Mr. Hearst in making the motion pictures clean and wholesome by the elimination of the sordid pictures.

"I think that Mr. Hearst has shown a wonderful attitude in his recent editorial and I do hope that he will be successful in doing something at least to make the motion pictures clean.

"The question of clean motion pictures has been a subject of discussion for some time with our organization. We are vitally interested because of the youth of our city. We all hope that Mr. Hearst will be successful."

Malden Facing $2 Tax Increase

Malden real estate owners got the bad news today that the tax rate would probably be $2 higher next year. The aldermen last night voted orders permitting a $71,300 increase in the budget.

CAPE ALL SET FOR FLEET

visiting motorists crowding the streets and throngs of visitors who have arrived to witness the gigantic parade of ships into the harbor.

A salute of 19 guns will be fired by the fleet in honor of Governor Ely, when he visits here Saturday, officially designated as Navy Day, to welcome the fleet to New England waters.

REVIEW BY ELY

Later Governor Ely and invited guests, including former Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, will review a parade in which 700 sailors from the visiting fleet and three Navy bands will take part with Legionnaires and Veterans of Foreign Wars and fraternal organizations.

After the parade Governor Ely and officers from the fleet will be guests of the town at a luncheon. In the afternoon a series of athletic events, including ball games and track meets will be held on Evans Field, established here by the late Admiral "Fighting Bob" Evans, on a visit by the fleet more than a score of years ago. The day will be rounded out with band concerts.

GANGPLANKS READY

Two huge steel scows, with gangplanks leading onto the town wharf, are in place to facilitate the landing of liberty parties of 200 men at a time. The Whitney, tender-repair ship for the 21 destroyers of the scouting fleet, is here ahead of schedule to repair a damaged propeller on the destroyer Tarnell.

After the fleet drops anchor here, Vice-Admiral Edward H. Campbell, commanding officer, will receive a welcoming committee of the selectmen aboard the flagship Indianapolis.

The destroyer group is expected to anchor four abreast in the inner harbor. Seven heavy cruisers will be included in the fleet. The Indianapolis, Portland, Pensacola, Chicago, Northampton, Salt Lake City and Chester. There also are the light cruisers Louisville and Raleigh and two auxiliary craft. Each heavy cruiser carries four airplanes.

The scouting fleet is described as being "made up entirely of fast ships, their purpose to locate the enemy and to assist in screening the battle fleet and furnish fast wings to deliver attacks where most needed."

Kent Sails Today

New York, July 11 (INS)—Rockwell Kent, artist and author, and his 13-year-old son, Gordon, sail on the Hamburg - American liner Deutschland tonight on the first leg of a trip to Greenland.

CUSHING HILL FIGHTS TANK

Residents of the Cushing Hill section of Dorchester today were planning to oppose a permit to store 40,000 additional gallons of oil and gasoline in the Granite avenue area.

Owen A. Gallagher, chairman of the street commissioners, told a committee of 25 that the permit had been granted by Mayor Mansfield. He advised them to appeal by petition to the state legislature.

Hays Sees Movie 'Rushes' in Cleanup View

By Universal Service

Hollywood, July 11—Filmdom's "Czar" has begun the admittedly colossal task of showing Hollywood how to answer the challenge of the new non-sectarian Legion of Decency to the motion picture industry, "produce clean films or face financial ruin."

Grimly, Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., under 1922 set about the work of eliminating the morally offensive features of film production.

With action, Hays made ready to accede to the demands of the Legion of Decency—originated by the Catholic Church and augmented by the support of mounting thousands of Protestants and Jews.

Accompanied by his chief assistant, Joseph I. Breen, to whom has been granted the power of absolute dictatorship over the production quality of pictures produced by member firms, Hays viewed each of the current month's "rushes."

He viewed "rushes" of scenes in productions he conferred with executives as to their future output. The preference in unloading ships, her chum, who was in the boat.

DOCK STRIKERS WIN ON UNION

New Bedford, July 11—Unloading of the Munson liner Walter D. Munson was resumed today following settlement of the dispute between the Greene and Wood and the local of the International Longshoremen's Union. The union won its points.

Greene and Wood, Inc., have contracted to stow shop pulpy for 30 years, it was announced, but hereafter union men will be given the preference in unloading ships, her chum, who was in the boat.

NEW SWIMMER DIES IN LAKE

Southbridge, July 11—Eighteen-year-old Vivienne Lavalles of 47 Union street, who had just recently learned to swim, was dead today, having drowned in Cedar Lake as she swam within a few yards of an accompanying boat.

Vain attempts to rescue the girl were made by Miss Jeanette Dutilly,

REDS BOAST OF HIDDEN 'CELLS' IN U. S. NAVY

(In the following article Robert Matthews discloses results of his investigation into Communist activities in the United States. The U. S. Navy, workers in the heavy industries, and college and farm youths, Matthews reveals, have been subjected to Communist agitation.)

By ROBERT MATTHEWS
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.)

New York, July 11—Winning the military forces is an important item in the Communist program in the United States, for Communists are convinced that if they ever are to attempt a Red revolution in America, they will require the assistance of the nation's armed forces.

That is why Communist propagandists welcomed gleefully the arrival of the fleet in New York harbor. It made the spreading of propaganda among the 35,000 men and officers more convenient.

After the fleet left, Communists boasted of having planted Red cells aboard several of the ships, including the U. S. S. Houston, aboard which President Roosevelt is now enjoying a vacation's trip.

BRAWNY "TROOPS" WANTED

The industrial centers get Communist attention because strong left wing unions assert they can tie up the country by a general strike and force the capitulation of the capitalists. San Francisco is an example of that plan.

In addition, the average steel worker is a healthy, brawny man who packs a wallop. He would make a perfect recruit for the Red Front storm troops, who will be in the thick of the milling when the revolution" arrives.

But for the long pull, the Communist party counts most heavily on the youth of the nation. Here Communism has found fertile soil. The depression has left youth dissatisfied with the prospect of a barren future.

CONTROL CAMPUSES

In New York city, the National Student League will control all college elections at Columbia, City College and New York University next fall. The league controls things now at the first two.

But this is not all. At N. Y. U., for instance, the league has only about 150 enrolled members; but it has the unenrolled support of 2000 Communist sympathizers. That is why the Communist-dominated anti-war demonstrations in New York city were able to bring out 35,000 college students, 10 times the number of the league's registrations.

Harold G. Campbell, New York superintendent of schools, recently took cognizance of the Communist activities and declared he would remove all teachers and expel all pupils who are found to be active Communists.

Astors Start East

Seattle, July 11 (AP)—The honeymooning John Jacob Astors were on their way to Glacier National Park and Chicago today. After two days of seclusion in Seattle the Astors left in their private railroad car late last night.

TODAY

at public cost, although the big prisons retain chaplains of the three dominating religions only, because their followers, so much the more numerous, commit by far the greatest number of murders.

The Smithsonian Institution is translating an interesting "diary," a notebook taken from some murdered frontier soldier. Four Indians in turn owned the diary and "wrote in it," in pictures, each having killed and scalped the owner that preceded him.

In this diary are pictures showing various Indian owners, including "Yellow Horse," "Little Bear," and "Howling Wolf." All pictures in the Indians' diary show how they killed and scalped other Indians or white men.

But it is not for white men to sneer. If you wrote the diary of many of our "best minds," you would have nothing to report except the collecting of money. The difference between collecting scalps and collecting money is not great, only the difference between white and red men, and, sometimes, scalp collecting is the less cruel amusement.

Tesla Plans Ray Curtain to Rout Army at 100 Miles

By Associated Press

New York, July 11—The discovery of a force ray that would destroy an army 100 miles away, that would make a nation a defense impregnable, has been announced by the inventor, Dr. Nikola Tesla. In the interests of peace, Dr. Tesla said, he plans to place the ray at the disposal of the Geneva Disarmament Conference. He announced the invention yesterday, on the occasion of his 78th birthday.

The force ray, Dr. Tesla said, would consist of particles, driven electrically and projected in vast curtains, miles high and 100 miles long.

The speed of the particles—traveling at velocities of 50,000,000 volts—was described by him as giving the ray its destructive powers. He said projecting plants, set up every 250 miles along a border, each shooting rays 100 miles on each side, would make the border impenetrable.

A fleet of 10,000 airplanes flying into such a curtain, he said, would be destroyed.

Dr. Tesla gave only a general description of the apparatus, asserting that the forces ray involved scientific advances hitherto scarcely conceived.

Dr. Tesla has been a pioneer in high frequency transmission and a noted inventor, with 200 patents to his credit.

16-Day N. J. Farm Strike Settled

Bridgeton, N. J., July 11—New Jersey's bitter 16-day farm strike was settled here when the federal government took a hand.

Peace was declared after a conference between representatives of the strikers, Charles F. Seabrook, owner of the farm, and federal and regional labor board mediators. Quiet settled down at Seabrook farm, scene of battles between strikers and peace officers, in which 40 workers were injured and many arrested.

60 Die in Floods

London, July 11 (INS)—Sixty persons were drowned and 150 are missing in floods at Yoshikawa, Japan, according to an Exchange telegraph dispatch from Tokio today.

Sea Lion Gets Catch of Gable

San Diego, Calif., July 11—Clark Gable, screen actor, can talk about the "one that got away" and without danger.

Fishing off the Coronado Islands from a live bait boat, Gable hooked a large barracuda. Gable never saw "the one that got away," but the attendant reported it was a large sea lion which had taken Gable's barracuda.

Chinese Cabinet Quits in Group

Nanking, July 11—The cabinet of the Chinese nationalist government resigned today en bloc. The action was a result of the impeachment of Railways Minister Kumengyu on charges of corruption.

TREK TO 'VIRGIN SHRINE' WANES

Southbridge, July 11—While a few curious stragglers still made their way to the Edmond Gaumond home in Pleasant street here to see the so-called "Virgin in Tears" on the wall of the Gaumond spare room, the excitement was practically over.

The reputed "image" on the wall was termed by Right Reverend Monsignor M. A. DesRosiers, as a "product of the imagination," and this was the reason for the halt in the interest.

Despite the monsignor's advice, Mrs. Gaumond maintained her stand in keeping the doors of her house open for those who wanted to visit her "shrine."

Infantile Paralysis Curb Visioned by Scientist

After 13 years of intensive study, Dr. W. Lloyd Aycock of the Harvard Infantile Paralysis Commission today revealed that the disease may soon be definitely curbed.

Dr. Aycock, a recognized authority on the disease, said his study has shown that the ailment is largely hereditary and may be minimized by systematic warnings to members of families afflicted.

In one family alone, Dr. Aycock revealed, he found 19 cases of paralysis in a space of 40 years. He pointed out that they were not due to contagion, because many members of the family were at widely distant points and some had not even met.

He added that he has virtually conclusive proof that susceptibility to the disease is transmitted by heredity and that the knowledge may yet lead to the isolation of such susceptibles.

2 Men Injured in Truck Crash

Two men were nursing injuries today as the result of a collision between a street car and a truck in Broadway, Everett. The injured, James DeVenuti, of Bellingham avenue, Chelsea, and Sebastino Petralis of Locust street, Everett, suffered cuts and bruises.

FALL FROM ROOF INJURES LAD

Falling 35 feet from the roof of his home, 128 West Eighth street, South Boston, Harry Struzzik, 18, was on the danger list at City Hospital today.

The youth had been going to the roof-top to gain relief from the heat. Last night he took an extra blanket with him. When he failed to appear for breakfast, his mother, Mrs. Catherine Struzzik, looked for him.

She found her son on a heap of paving bricks beside the house.

Hartford Bans "Shorts"

Hartford, Conn., July 11 (INS)—Stern Father Hartford has frowned on "shorts" for women. Park Superintendent George H. Hollister Tuesday issued a ban on all women appearing on municipal golf courses and tennis courts dressed in shorts.

"Vamps" of Our Grandfathers' Day, Gorgeous Career of Notorious Adah Menken, Who Had Big Personages of the Day at Her Feet Seventy Years Ago, but Wouldn't Be Much of a Hit Nowadays. An Entertaining Illustrated Article in The American Weekly, the Magazine Distributed With the July 15th Boston Sunday Advertiser.

— it takes good wheat to make good flour

— and here's what it takes to make a good cigarette

OUT IN THE MIDDLE WEST where wheat is raised, everybody knows that it takes good grain to make good flour.

And down where tobacco is raised the people who have grown up with tobacco know that it takes the right kind of leaf to make a good cigarette.

DOWN WHERE THEY GROW TOBACCO, in most places Chesterfield is the largest-selling cigarette. People know that because Chesterfields are made of the right kind of tobacco it is a milder cigarette, a cigarette that tastes better.

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfields are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

CHURCHMAN IN SUIT CHARGED WITH LOANS

Nantucket, July 11—Suit by Monell Sayre, Episcopal churchman, asking return of $40,000 in Canadian bonds from Mrs. Anastasia Pitts, his friend for 20 years, proved a boomerang today when Mrs. Pitts countered with a suit against Sayre for $20,000.

The new action asks that Sayre return $10,000 that he was alleged to have borrowed from the $40,000, in addition to another $10,000 worth of coupons that were clipped from the bonds.

Sayre, at one time associated with J. Pierpont Morgan and others in drives for church funds, was revealed today as one who pleaded with Mrs. Pitts from time to time for shelter at her home here, according to her testimony.

In one letter to her, Mrs. Pitts testified, Sayre related that he would just as soon sleep in a kennel to "keep body and soul together." The letter was written after Sayre had been asked by high church powers to resign as their moving power in campaigns for money.

The letter said in part:

"Please tell me that if I ever got in extreme need I could come to Nantucket so I would not die like a dog. I would sleep in a kennel and feed on scraps but I would not die of hunger."

Plainville, Conn., July 11 (INS)—Seth W. Steward, 90, one of this town's few remaining civil war veterans, is dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ernest Farar here last night.

MYSTERY TRIP OFFERS THRILLS

In the Boston Evening American today, readers will find the coupons for tomorrow's "Mystery Cruise" on the steamship Steel Pier, whose destination for the all-day sail will be unknown even to the captain, until the ship has left the dock.

Lines will be cast off at Commercial wharf and the excursion steamer of the Cape Cod Steamship Co., will proceed down the harbor.

When the boat is out in the harbor, a balloting of the passengers will be made and the S. S. Steel Pier will follow the bidding of the vote.

MAY SEE U. S. FLEET

It may be the North Shore, South Shore or down to the Cape Cod Canal, or, more likely, Provincetown, where the U. S. fleet will be tomorrow.

The Cape Cod Steamship Co. has been running excursions on the S. S. Steel Pier since the start of the summer, and the ship has proved popular with persons seeking to get away from the humid city for a few breaths of fresh, cool air.

RATES REDUCED

The Cape Cod Steamship Co. has made it possible for more of the people to become acquainted with its new service, through reduction in rates for adults from $2 to $1, and a corresponding reduction from $1 to 50 cents for children.

This is the special rate for the "Mystery Cruise," from 10:15 a. m. to 6 p. m. and the Boston Evening American has been chosen as the medium to spread the good word. In today's Boston Evening American a coupon, entitling the holder to reduced rates on the Steel Pier therefore, is printed.

Men, women and children are invited to take advantage of this reduction. Just clip the coupon in today's Boston Evening American, present it at the office of the Cape Cod Steamship Co., at Commercial wharf, Thursday morning and exchange it for a boat ticket.

FIRE MENACES RICH ESTATES

Fire on the Canton estate of General Francis R. Peabody, Boston banker, aroused the society section of that town today and threatened the adjoining estate of R. Bailey Davenport, gentleman farmer and sportsman.

The estate is occupied by General Peabody's daughter, who was wed in the fall of 1923 to Major Montague W. W. Prowse, former British war officer and now a Boston banker.

Seventy-five tons of newly-cut hay furnished ready fuel for the blaze that broke out in the huge barn not far from the house occupied by the couple.

Major Prowse dashed out and led a force of hired hands in the rescue of 18 prize horses and other livestock. Valuable farm implements, a tractor and an automobile were destroyed.

Firemen, who estimated the damage at $14,000 declared the fire probably started from spontaneous combustion in the newly-cut hay.

Madden Bobs Up in Coal Probe

New York, July 11 (INS)—Owney Madden, racket czar, who has been leading a retired life since his release from prison, may get back into the spotlight tomorrow in the New York County Grand jury's coal inquiry.

His name was found on the payroll of the Champion Coal Company. Assistant District Attorney Wahl said his connection with the firm would be thoroughly probed.

The Champion Company has been accused of defrauding the city through short-weight deliveries and inferior grades of coal. Wahl said Edward A. Thompson, head of the firm, had refused to sign a waiver of immunity before confronting the jury.

Try to Avert Strike

Minneapolis, July 11 (AP)—Last-minute efforts to avert another truck drivers' strike were being made by conciliators today.

Trouble and Diplomats

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Germany has no diplomats and gets into plenty of trouble. France has too many diplomats and gets into more trouble.

So it looks as if the world has fanned out taking three strikes at a happy medium.

Only England seems to get any results from high silk hats and striped trousers. Think of how much better the world would be if Ambassador Dawes had only learned to wear short pants in London.

England went after its Berlin debt interest like a barber after an ingrown hair. Its success was due to the fact that it had a favorable trade balance.

When England sends a diplomat abroad, it's the start of a career for a statesman. When we send an ambassador abroad, it's the end of a career for a politician.

MRS. HAROLD G. CUTLER'S beautiful estate which formerly was her father's, the late A. W. Preston on Atlantic avenue, Swampscott, is the Mecca for the smart set along the North Shore today . . . The Garden Club holds its annual flower show which is always lovely and original.

The spacious mansion set among age-old trees and broad rolling lawns overlooks the blue ocean . . . on the edge of which Mrs. Cutler's own estate fronts for half a mile or more, with beautiful flower gardens and shrubs for background. It is one of the beauty spots of the shore . . .

MRS. HAROLD G. CUTLER

There are ten classes, among them decorations for the tea table, flower arrangements in the Japanese manner, reflections of vase of flowers in a mirror and a collection of cut blooms. The ladies in Swampscott and vicinity take keen delight in this friendly competition, some of them growing their own blossoms from the seed and caring for them entirely themselves, and the results are always a delight and worth the conscientious care and thought. These are no mere amateur gardeners—this is their thirteenth season and rivalry runs high among them.

Pilgrimages are made to the gardens and flower shows from Bar Harbor to Cape Cod to see what other members are doing with nature's specimens and colors each year and many rare and beautiful collections have been protected and perpetuated by these gentlewomen gardeners.

The Gardeners' Club, which is made up of members' gardeners, are given a chance to display their skill, this season in border planting, and you may imagine with what zest they have been working the past few months for this much anticipated event.

Special Class for Children

IN THE CHILDREN'S CLASSES THERE is to be a portrayal of a Mother Goose Rhyme, just how we cannot imagine, but we have seen similar ideas worked out in previous shows and the result is always amazing and interesting. The children love to prepare for this affair and attend in numbers to see what their little friends have performed, a very healthy and useful avocation for the young.

The general committee is made up of Mrs. Cutler, Mrs. Edward F. Breed, chairman; Mrs. Stanley D. Forbes, vice-chairman; Mrs. Charles N. Breed, Mrs. Horace D. Brush, Miss Jean Carpenter, Mrs. Albert M. Creighton, Mrs. Lyman B. Frazer, Mrs. James F. Hale, Mrs. Carlyle H. Holt, Mrs. John F. Langmaid, Miss Patricia W. Preston, Mrs. Charles A. Proctor, Miss Deborah Sprague, Mrs. Preston T. Stephenson, Mrs. Henry L. Taylor and Mrs. Richard Ward.

Many who motored down in the morning dropped in at Mrs. Andrew J. George's lecture on current events at the Hotel Rockmere, in the historic town of Marblehead. The daily news was discussed. Mrs. George is well known hereabouts for her interesting and authentic information. She travelled abroad last summer and will tell what she saw and heard in four lectures, which will take place each Wednesday morning.

The first lecture take place on "Eighteen Months of the New Deal" . . . the second, "Dictatorships," and the last two will be announced later.

First of Marblehead Dance Series

IN THE EVENING THE FIRST of the subscription dances at the Fo'csa'le arranged by Mr. and Mrs. George Noble Ricker (Elizabeth Brackett), for Wednesday evenings will take place on the upper deck . . . colorful with lanterns and awnings, with a gay band to keep the toes twinkling, it will present a gala picture on the shores of the bay, agleam with lights and crowded with little ships. Many smart dinner parties are being given at the hotel and in private homes preceding this summer dance frolic and the Fair Things and their Favored Ones will gather in numbers from Rockport to Cohasset to start the season off with a whoop . . . !

Elizabeth Stephenson

Those two charmers, Eleanor and Elizabeth Stephenson, daughters of the William R. C. Stephensons of Brookline, will be among those present. Jane Bogardus who has lost none of her popularity since she came out last year, or was it the year before that? . . . the attractive Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, Jr., who is among Boston's best dressed young matrons and the Paul Rusts, prominent in the summer colony, will all attend. If there is a moon, it will be just perfect dancing to the seductive strains of the orchestra under the starlit sky . . . or maybe sitting. AFT in the shadows of an awning-for-two . . . it is one of the most beautiful spots you could possibly imagine.

Fashion Show to Aid Nursery Fund

TOMORROW WE WILL BE SEEING you at Del Monte's where the fashion show for the Sunnyside Day Nursery is being held at lunch time . . . a group of well known society maids and matrons are tripping up and down the runway wearing the latest creations . . . among them pretty Mrs. F. Wadsworth Bush, Mrs. Devens Hamlen, Mrs. Edward Weeks, Mrs. Joseph Woods, Miss Harriet Moseley, Miss Catherine Penteecost and Mrs. J. G. Flint . . .

A group of North Shore matrons are patronesses and if this affair brings out as large a crowd as formerly, Del Monte's will overflow onto the verandahs and even into the terraced gardens and rocks on the edge of Rafe's Chasm . . . a marvelous place to spend a warm summer afternoon.

Pet Show for Children Is Feature

HAMILTON OPENED ITS DOORS again for another Christ Church Fair. Many new features were added, among which was a pet show for any sort of animal except dogs. This was the chief attraction of the morning and it was managed by Mrs. Gilbert Steward.

The Rev. William F. A. Stride, rector of the Christ Church, was the chairman of the men's executive committee, and Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer headed the general arrangement committee. She was assisted by Mrs. Stride, Mrs. P. G. Anderson, Mrs. Arthur Mason, Mrs. J. G. Callahan, Mrs. Alex MacDonald, Miss Elizabeth Knevels. Those helping Dr. Stride were George von Meyer, Henry O. Phippen, Justin W. Griess, Edgar Andrews and S. J. Tyack.

Miss Anne Sortwell managed the cabaret and her committee included Miss Sally White, Miss Madelyn Phillips, Miss Beatrice Phillips, and Miss Nina Phillips.

The afternoon has as its special attraction a baby carriage parade at 4 o'clock and this is to be followed by a fashion show in which the mannequins range from 3 years to 11 years of age. Mrs. Alvin T. Sortwell and Mrs. Joseph B. Hoyt, Jr., are in charge of this novel idea.

Amusements were provided for every one, and the men's specialties were games such as African dodger, darts, horseshoes, hoopla, canes and an exhibition of mock art.

Society Notes

MISS PRISCILLA GANO, one of the season's attractive debutantes, left this week with her father, Mr. Seth Thomas Gano of Belmont, and her sister, Miss Cynthia for a trip to White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. Miss Gano was presented in June at a garden luncheon. She has been entertaining Miss Adelaide Mahoney of Wilmington, Delaware, who was a classmate at Bradford Academy. Miss Mahoney will make her debut the last of September and Miss Gano expects to go to Wilmington for the ball. Miss Barbara Gano, her elder sister, arrives from England on the Scythia on July 15 where she has been studying at Cambridge.

Senior Philomatheia Club Members Entertained

Mrs. Vincent Roberts Is Hostess at Her Summer Home

PROBABLY THE MOST COLORFUL spot on the South Shore on Monday afternoon was the estate of Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, at North Scituate, who opened her beautiful home for a garden tea and bridge, and entertained over 200 members and guests of the Senior Philomatheia Club of Boston, to aid the scholarship fund of Boston College.

Mrs. Roberts made a regal hostess in white embroidered georgette with clusters of red flowers, and was assisted in receiving by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, Jr., wearing a flattering garden print silk. Quite stunning was Mrs. John J. Williams' gown of beige lace and rowest crudle hat of white. Mrs. Michael McCarthy, a member of the committee, was busy, looking especially cool in the ever smart black and white.

Rose Ensemble

We caught a glimpse of Mrs. Frederick Mahoney, with a large white hat completing her costume of black and white sheer; Mrs. Charles Stack in a paper white sport silk; Mrs. R. J. A'Hearn of Winthrop, lovely in a rose ensemble with black trimming, and Mrs. M. F. Maguire very summerish in a blue and yellow flowered print, topped by large black picture hat.

It seemed so good to have Mrs. Charles J. O'Malley back again and Mrs. Daniel J. Holland, in navy blue; Mr. James Bryen, in tailored brown, and Mrs. James McDonough, in ice blue crepe were seen chatting with her.

A group of enthusiastic committee workers included Mrs. William Bannon, becomingly gowned in all white; Mrs. Frank Regan in fashion's combination of chartreuse and brown, with a large picture hat; Mrs. William Brophy in the popular black and white print crepe and white hat.

As refreshing as the breezes that were blowing, the fair young servers, all members of the Junior Philomatheias, fluttered by including Rose Fitzgerald, a blue and red figured silk worn gracefully; Rita Carr quite alluring in green; Ruth Murphy dainty in a flowered print with which she wore a jacket of blackberry silk; Catherine Hanley in two shades of blue; Catherine Eagan, fair and smiling, in a garden print; Peggy Tracy in a sunny brown and white polka dot sports ensemble with a large hat; Patricia Gavin, a dainty picture, wearing chartreuse and brown; Lucille O'Malley, a study in green and brown and Mary Dowd with a pleated ruff around her neck, a la Velasquez.

Lucille O'Malley

Dispensing the punch was Mrs. James W. Carr whose smart sports costume of white crepe was set off by touches of red; Mrs. George Flood, very garden-partyish in light blue georgette with tiny puff sleeves and a chic sash of dark blue velvet and large blue hat; and Miss Marcella Eberle in a crisp brown dimity with large collegiate collar.

Attending to the game of bridge, Miss Sally Elberry's pure white costume set off her dark hair; Miss Elizabeth Norton was very feminine in figured print silk; Mrs. Thomas Burns introduced a dark spot with navy blue and Mrs. Edward Downey was a dash of all white.

Quite different and striking was the pink sport crepe costume with trimmings of blue, worn by Mrs. James McCarthy, whose soft white hair was very much admired. Mrs. David Gentles attended in a figured black and white sports creation and was taking to Mrs. Charles Slattery in all white. Pretty Mrs. Charles Hall chose figured chiffon and a dark blue crepe hat for her bridge attire and Mrs. John T. Manning selected the fashionable garden print and lace.

Scholarship Fund of Boston College Will Benefit

Welcome Guests

Mrs. Thomas Troy assisted in welcoming the guests and was smart black and white. Mrs. noticed Mrs. Charles Fitzpatrick wearing a figured print, while Mrs. William Fouhey of Belmont appeared, also in print. Three familiar faces caught our eye, Mrs. Henry Fitzgerald, calm and dignified in white; Mrs. Joseph Kirby, in a beige and brown tailored costume, and Mrs. George Wester, in a gay lemon silk.

Garden Party for Home

Sheila O'Donovan Rossa, chairman of the ladies committee of the Harriet Tubman House, met with her committee at the Myles Standish Hotel today at 4 o'clock. Plans were made for the annual garden party in aid of the Tubman House which will be held the latter part of the summer season at the grounds of President and Mrs. John A. Cousens.

Mrs. George Harris Babbitt, Mrs. Richard D. Elv, Mrs. Charles H. Innes, Mrs. John Lindsley, Baroness A. M. von Blomberg, Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, Mrs. Frederick E. Snow, Mrs. Charles S. Newton, Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke, Mrs. Edwin Peterson, Mrs. J. H. LeFevre, Mrs. Henry F. Bamberg, Miss Caroline Cabot, Mrs. Charles F. Hurley, Mr. Arthur Lyman, Madame Sharz de Lys, Mr. Charles J. Innes, Mr. John Cutler, Mrs. Samuel G. Pavin, Mr. George W. Roberts, Mrs. John A. Cousens, and Mr. Paul A. Dever were among those of Mrs. Rossa's committee who gathered today.

"THAT'S GRATITUDE" TO BE PRODUCED WITH FRANK CRAVEN AS STAR AND DIRECTOR

Gilda Gray Joins Stars Making "The Great Ziegfeld"; Her Husband Gets Fortune

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service Inc.)

Los Angeles, July 11—Amazing, the reaction this church fight for cleaner pictures is having in Hollywood. Stories—the plain homespun type, that have lain dormant—are being brought out into the light and given the preference over the sensational scenarios of yesterday. Harry Cohn has just purchased "That's Gratitude," a play by Frank Craven which ran in New York several years ago.

And here is where Frank comes into his own. Columbia, who wants this picture to be as spotless as the W. K. driven snow, is having Mr. Craven act in it, adapt it and direct it. Nothing like being versatile. Arthur Byron, Helen Ware, Richard Cromwell and Sheila Manners represent the rest of the lineup. In case you are interested the role that Arthur Byron plays is the one that first introduced Gay Kibbee to Hollywood.

In the avalanche of mail on this crowded desk I find four postcards from Marion Davies, who is enjoying a holiday in Europe. Marion is returning in the fall, and her first picture will be Sidney Skolsky's "Movie Queen." Sidney, who writes a most interesting column on Hollywood news, sold this story some months ago, and it's just now being adapted by that brilliant young man-about-town, Charlie Lederer.

I feel like being trite, so please don't mind just once if I say it never rains but it pours. Gilda Gray's husband has inherited $250,000 and on the very day the notification was received she was invited to be a part of "The Greatest Ziegfeld" at Universal. William Anthony McGuire, who knew Gilda when her shimmy shake was the sensation of Broadway, has nominated her to sing "It's Getting Dark in Old Broadway" in this film. Gilda said today that she wants to make one picture at least before she and her husband, Hector Briseno De Saa, who has a title n'everything, sail to claim their castles in Spain.

Wonder why Hollywood couldn't see Laura La Plante? She used to be one of the very best comediennes in the silent days; then she suddenly slipped into the place where jobs were few and far between. London has now acclaimed her as one of its favorite screen stars. So popular has she become that she has accepted an offer to star in "Admiral Ball," a stage play by Ian Hay. London hails Laura as we hail Charles Laughton, Madeline Carroll, Ronald Colman, etc. Laughton, by the bye, and his talented wife, Elsa Lanchester, are about to be signed on a 1935 contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer.

Chatter in Hollywood

Did I say or didn't I say that one of these fine days Evelyn Venable would kick over the traces and marry despite Papa's watchful eye. I have on very good authority the exciting tid-bit of gossip that Evelyn Venable will celebrate her next birthday anniversary, when she comes of age, with a trip to the altar with Hal Mohr. Evelyn has been telling everybody she wants a career, and she is very ambitious to head her own Shakespearean company, but when a girl falls in love—well, you know how it is.

Who says there isn't a chance for a talented young Chinese in Hollywood? Keye Luke, who has been doing advertising art at Radio, played in some shorts as a favor to one of his friends at Radio. Some one on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot saw the shorts and—to make a long story short—the Chinese youth was brought over to M-G-M and tested for the role of Dr. Shay Kee Feng in "The Painted Veil"—opposite Greta Garbo. Moreover, Keye's agent, who has apparently decided, in spite of his original do bite, to give "Good Earth" an Oriental cast, has all but decided to give young Keye Luke one of the principal roles.

Marjorie Moss Goulding, who has been sick unto death, is being brought back to Hollywood by her husband, Edmund Goulding. Few people know of Eddie's patience and sweetness to his wife and his generosity to her in her illness. He is bringing her back in a private car with a nurse, a chauffeur and a maid. She is still critically ill, but who knows what California's sunshine may do to restore her health. Traveling with me on The Chief from Chicago to Los Angeles were the names of Arthur Brisbane, O. O. McIntyre, Will Hays and countless movie stars. Ida cherishes one page. It says: "To Ida who has made this trip with me so many times and may we make it many more times." Signed, "Marie Dressler." Our Mary, who has only been home a scant six weeks, will soon be on her way again. She leaves Wednesday to be guest-of-honor at the World's Fair; and then she will go on to New York; eh-eh—there are three or four big offers for the one and only Mary Pickford to make a stage play. And I am urging her to accept the best one.

Three live wallabies have been added to the Walt Disney menage in Hollywood where they will be entertained and then studied as star material for a future Mickey Mouse production. They constitute a wallaby family in which the father known as Trapo, the mother as "Hoppo" and the youngster—for the time being, at least—as Pouchie.

Brought in California by Leo Buring, Australian wine merchant, they were originally two. But the trip from the Antipodes was a long one and they arrived three in number.

Max Baer Will Top New Met Stage Bill

The most colorful and varied assortment of attractions to find their way to the first-run picture house in many weeks forms the coming programs at the Metropolitan, Keith's Memorial and Boston, and Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

Max Baer comes to the Metropolitan Friday, heading a stage show called "Clowning Around." Benny Rubin, a Boston boy, will introduce the world's champion. The picture at the Met will be "Midnight Alibi," starring Richard Barthelmess and featuring Ann Dvorak. "Midnight Alibi" is the latest of Damon Runyon's stories to reach the screen. The famous sports writer called the original story "An Old Doll's House," but "Midnight Alibi" was the title chosen for the film.

Duke Ellington and his "Harlem aristocrats of jazz" will return to the Orpheum Friday. His program will feature his own composition, "Wood Indigo." "Hollywood Party" is the Orpheum's accompanying screen attraction.

At Keith's Boston, tomorrow, "Affairs of a Gentleman," with Paul Lukas and "We're Rich Again," with Edna May Oliver, are the attractions.

It is safe to anticipate that "Of Human Bondage," the Leslie Howard picture which is featured by Bette Davis' excellent performance as the bad-tempered waitress of Somerset Maugham's great novel, will be held over at Keith's Memorial. The picture is breaking records at the Music Hall in New York, and trade has been prosperous in the extreme since the film's advent here last Saturday.

A long-awaited picture, "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," will be the attraction at Loew's State starting Friday. This screen story serves to return Ronald Colman to the gelatines after almost a year's absence. It was Colman who played the dashing Captain Hugh Drummond in the earlier talking picture, "Bulldog Drummond." Loretta Young, Warner Oland and Charles Butterworth, appear in support of the star.

On the twin screens of the Paramount and Fenway Theaters, the pictures which begin a week's showing tomorrow are "The Key," with William Powell, Edna Best and Colin Clive; and "The Old Fashion Way," with W. C. Fields, Baby Le Roy, Judith Allen and Joe Mullhollond.

At the Fine Arts, Lillian Harvey in "Heart Song," and a return engagement of "The Joy of Life (Das Lied Vom Leben)," begin today.

Mae West Film Titleless

By Associated Press

Hollywood, July 10—A selection of a title for Mae West's latest film tonight became a problem of headache proportions as the studio announced withdrawal of the caption "The Belle of New Orleans."

Although the announcement came shortly after a storm of protest was raised in New Orleans over the suggested title, Paramount studio officials said the withdrawal was made when they discovered there once was a play named "Belle of New Orleans" and it was feared there might be legal complications.

The film first was called "It Ain't No Sin," but the studio dropped it as the organization of the New York censors. At that time studio authorities said, the "it" in the title "perhaps was ambiguous."

Linda and Jerome Hear Bells Ringing in Crazy Rhythm From Some Hidden Point

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young ship-builder, and a lovely society girl, named Linda, escape in a skiff from a yacht held in quarantine off San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda dislike each other; but, nevertheless, are willing to risk being mutually bored rather than endure an indefinite stay aboard ship. From the moment they land on a strange island, queer happenings occur . . .

Their boat is set adrift, their clothing stolen; yet there is no other sign of a living human, except periodic cries from the jungle. Exploring, they come upon a small plantation and house, having every appearance of being well tended but vacant. Among the few house furnishings are some priceless Spanish chests. The discovery of a heavy whip leads Linda and Jerry to assume that the owner must be cruel.

CHAPTER VII

There came suddenly the rapid clangor of what must have been a very large bell. It sounded no great distance away. The notes were deep but muffled as if the bell were being thumped by some substance not hard enough to strike a clear note. Also this pounding was irregular, both in its spacing and in the force of the successive blows.

Linda said, "Another nutty performance."

"It tells us something, though."

"I knew it already. We've pitched on to an isolated reservation for lunatics.

"There may be something in that."

"Plenty. Whatever dinky republic this land belongs to has rounded up its crazy ministers and dumped them out here. There is the keeper's residence and he's gone off somewhere."

"There must be somebody in charge. That bell is probably where they're quartered."

HORRIBLE THOUGHT

She went on: "They're given the run of the island but taught to keep away from these premises. All the same you'd scarcely think he'd leave them without a keeper."

A horrible thought occurred to Jerome but he kept it to himself. He wondered if the island could be not only a dumping ground for mentally afflicted but also a leper colony. That would explain its immunity from the danger of trespass.

It might be a sort of Caribbean Molokai. An isolation colony for the undesirables amongst whom might be a number who had lost their reason, whether through disease or other causes.

Linda said, "If these creatures are prisoners you'd think they'd have tried to get away in our boat instead of merely setting her adrift. Pity you couldn't have kept your eye on her."

He retorted, "It's a pity you couldn't have lent a hand to help patch her up instead of going half a mile down the beach and staying there."

"You might have known I'd had all I could stand of you without a breathing spell before the next hitch."

"Yes, and what's come of it?"

"Well, what are you going to do about it?"

Here was another problem Jerome could not answer. He turned to cooking the eggs and getting some biscuits out in silence. The spasmodic clanging of the bell continued. Some of the notes were short and muffled, others louder and jangled. Then as if to add maliciously to the discordance the raucous cry with its jeering quality burst out again. This time before it died away others that were shriller and syncopated joined the medley. The macaw called in its harsh voice, then flew away.

Linda said, with the irritability that is provoked by fear that one resents, "That doesn't sound like anything human to me."

"It's crazy," Jerome admitted, "but not dangerous necessarily."

KEEPS DREAD SECRET

She glanced at him sharply. "You're scared yourself. Why not admit it?"

He refrained from telling her just why he was in a state of such clammy dread. To be marooned on an isolated reservation for lunatic natives was bad enough, but the idea that they might also be crazed from loathsome disease and hopelessness and isolation was infinitely worse.

But he said reassuringly, "This man who lives here is probably a doctor in charge. He may be studying these cases and trying out some sort of cure. He's not apt to be long away. Let's eat and then go up and overhaul his library."

The distant clamor stopped suddenly. They finished their breakfast undisturbed. The greatest trial now was lack of footwear. There seemed no way to supply this need.

They went back to look over the house more thoroughly but there was nothing much to search except the chests securely locked. The bookshelves contained only books. The armoires and the drawers of the desk proved to be empty until Jerome found in the last one opened a curious object. This was a steel hook securely set in a round wooden block which was encircled by a heavy leather cuff with a strap attached.

"What's that thing?" Linda asked. "Do you remember Captain Cuttle?"

"No—but I do recall Captain Hook in 'Peter Pan.' Yes, that's what it is."

"He's lost a right hand," Jerome said.

"Why a right hand?"

"Out in the storeroom there was a steel fishing rod on some pegs. I noticed that the reel was rigged to use left-handed. The cork butt was scored and worn in a ring where he'd gripped it with the hook. You can do a lot with a hook but a gentleman wouldn't care to wear it in public. When he goes ashore he probably wears a gloved artificial hand."

"Do you think he's a doctor?"

"There are some medical books—comparative anatomy, biology and botany. There's a book on natural remedies to be found in different latitudes."

X-9'ers Hot on the Trail

It may be just too bad for Bulldog Drummond's secretary. Hundreds of X-9'ers are on his trail and when he passes Loew's Orpheum in Washington street at noon today, lots of embryo detectives were ready to pick him out and win the cash reward. The secretary is shown in the inset. Ronald Colman (right), and Charles Butterworth are shown in a scene from "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," which opens at Loew's State Friday.

You Can Make This Dainty Slip

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9070

Some people may not expect much of a slip . . . but they should. A slip has very definite things to and its business is to do them as perfectly as possible. As for example, this slip does! It fits flawlessly . . . the cut does that! It goes on easily, just wraps around the figure, crosses in the back and fastens in the front.

It is very easy to make and easy to iron, it is shadow proof, and has a pretty pointed neck in which you may insert a "modesty vest" if you are the sort of woman that takes stock in such things. Dainty in silk, practical in cambric.

Pattern 9070 may be ordered only in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

A beautiful, complete collection of Summer clothes is shown in the new SUMMER EDITION BOOK. This book will help you plan a stunning vacation wardrobe. Clever beach ensembles, charming costumes for the gardener, style for the summer bride and her attendants and sun suits for children are among the special features.

Science Wins Occupational Disease War

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We are greatly indebted to the brilliant work of scientists who have brought about a marked reduction in occupational diseases and accidents. At one time "silicosis" was a common disease of men employed in sand blasting, foundry work and mills, in the making of castings, sandstone products and glass, as well as in quartz, granite and asbestos mining. Today these occupational diseases are almost unknown.

As a result of undue exposure to silicates, a sand compound, workers became victims of such disturbances of the lungs as "anthracosis," "silicosis," "siderosis," "asbestosis" and "pneumonoconiosis. These diseases with terrible names result from exposure to various kinds of dust which the workers inhale. Fundamentally they are identical, and all of them lead to gradual impairment of the health.

Great harm is done by continually taking silicates or other irritating dust into the lungs. It leads to chronic irritation and ultimately to the formation of fibrous tissue and thickening of the lungs. As a result of this change, breathing becomes difficult and the lungs fail to perform their regular function.

If the disease is not recognized at an early stage and the workman is permitted to continue with his work, he becomes more and more susceptible to various infections of the lungs. He may contract pneumonia which in many instances develops into tuberculosis. The heart becomes weakened because of the additional work placed upon it, and within a very short time the individual becomes a chronic invalid.

Fortunately, through better understanding of the means of prevention, industrial medicine has conquered this disease. Mines are now equipped with ventilation systems, safety lamps and mechanical devices that detect poisonous gases and increased amounts of dust. The circulation of excess dust is prevented by wet drilling which diminishes the inhalation of irritating substances.

Where engineering facilities are not sufficient to control the dust, the workmen are provided with wet masks similar to those used in war during a gas attack. In addition to these precautions, workmen who may be exposed to dust are given physical examinations.

TULIP MOTIFS PATTERN 754

The Dutch Windmill, the pattern orginated in the earliest days of quiltmaking, is one of the loveliest designs the modern quiltmaker has inherited. Two materials—two patch pieces—simple in form and easy to join, and the result is a quilt that is indeed an heirloom. In olden times the trundle-bed had to have its quilt, too, and the thing to do was to make one to match that on the parents' bed, only using a smaller design. The modern woman can follow this decorative custom in this quilt, for the identical pattern is obtainable in the crib size, pattern 434, at an additional cost of 10 cents.

Pattern 427 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to (Boston Evening American), Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

TROOPS RING GERMANY

the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Baltic states with Germany, too, if she will enter it.

The third is the proposed "Mediterranean" Locarno among France, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Greece and Turkey.

SEERS ENGLISH PROMISE

The gist of the old West Locarno was a promise by England and Italy to come to the aid of the victim of an attack by either France or Germany over the Franco-German frontier. What France wants above everything today is not mere reaffirmation of the old Locarno by England. She gets that nearly every week in Parliament. What France wants is renewal of England's engagement to stand by her if Germany attacks.

If France were absolutely sure of English support she would lose her nervousness. But England has hitherto refused to do anything more to assert that she would fulfill old promises.

Now Barthou believes he can get a new promise from England by rewriting the old or West Locarno and bringing the Soviet Union in as a new guarantor. Because of her military and geographical situation, remote from France it is hard to imagine how the Soviet Union could be of any real help. But Barthou hopes to use the Soviet Union's entry into the pact as bait to get a new promise out of England.

The Soviet Union-in turn is willing to enter the West Locarno pact if France can induce Poland, Czechoslovakia and the Baltic States to enter the East Locarno pact. More than that, the Soviet Union will become a member of the League of Nations, if France can bring about the East Locarno.

LINKED IN DEFENSE PACT

All of these Locarno pacts would contain first a promise of non-aggression, second a promise of mutual consultation in case of trouble, and third, most important, a promise of common action against the aggressor. All would be liked to the covenant of the League so that no non-member could join.

For the Soviet union as well as France this sort of pact just suits the national policy for the Soviet Union like France is one of those nations which have all the territory it wants. Germany on the other hand is one of those nations which have less than they want.

It would suit France perfectly if Germany would enter the eastern Locarno. But Germany probably will not consent to become her own jailer. The best-informed diplomatic circles here believe that Germany will agree to examine the plan and then go on examining it indefinitely.

But that will suit France just as well inasmuch as Germany's refusal to enter the pact will stamp her according to French opinion as having aggressive intentions.

Germany on the other hand realizes that Barthou's plan is an extremely cleverly disguised but effective net of steel around her border. Delcasse, pre-war French diplomat, forged his famous "ring of steel" around Germany. Barthou's ring is better than a single land. It is not proposing to include not only Germany's immediate neighbors but her neighbors' neighbors in a web of bayonets pointed at this country.

Its success would mean the indefinite perpetuation of that status quo laid down in the Versailles treaty. Germany could not move to extend her frontiers without bringing down all Europe on her head.

This looks bad to Germany today but there are two important hurdles for Barthou to take even if he succeeds in lining up England. He has got to get Poland's consent to the West Locarno for without Poland, it would have no meaning. He has got to get Italy's consent to the Mediterranean pact. Neither country has been favorable to France's bloc policy.

There is nervous today but old privy councillors of the German foreign office are watching Barthou and privately commenting: "Let the old man wear himself out." He will soon run out of wind."

X-9ERS TO PLAY SLEUTH TODAY

Today is the day for members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club to play sleuth.

The test will prove an assignment to test your mettle, with a cash prize as the reward, if you are successful.

Today, that famous character of novels and the screen, Bulldog Drummond, will have his secretary at a designated place at a certain hour. The first X-9er to identify him will be entitled to the prize.

This contest, open only to Boston Evening American X-9 members, is being held in connection with the showing of the new mystery romance, "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," which opens at Loew's State Theater on Friday.

Bulldog Drummond's secretary is to be the hunted one. Here are the clues. He will pass the Loew's Orpheum theater on Washington street, sometime from 12:30 to 12:45 today. He is five feet 10 inches in height, weighs 160 pounds, and is light complexioned.

When you see him, you must tap him on the shoulder, show your Secret Agent X-9 membership card and say:

"You are the Bulldog Drummond of the Boston Evening American."

If you are the first to identify him correctly, then you will be entitled to $5 in cash.

Remember, only X-9 members are eligible to compete and these exact words must be used.

Maidge Dares Her Mother-in-Law's Displeasure by Breaking Into the Telephone Conversation With Philip Veritzen.

CHAPTER 85

AS I HEARD my mother-in-law's voice in telephone colloquy with Philip Veritzen, I waffled mental salute to the person who first voiced the proverb between the devil and the deep sea, for it was approximately the position in which I found myself.

I must talk with Philip Veritzen in order to give him from the farm house the dinner invitation I already had extended to him while I was telephoning from The Larches, but, as Dicky often says, "It's risking your life to come between mother and a telephone."

However, there was no other way. I must break into the conversation from the downstairs phone. But it was with the feeling of putting my head into the mouth of a lion that I spoke hurriedly and placatingly into the transmitter.

Oh! mother dear, I'm here? I came in only two or three minutes ago, and I'm at the downstairs phone now. I heard it ring and hurried out, but you were quicker than I."

There was a silence that dripped. It was so packed with disapproval. Then my mother-in-law spoke with icy emphasis.

"Very well. I shall hang up the receiver." There was a sudden click.

Has she gone?" Mr. Veritzen asked excitedly and I answered quickly. "Yes. I will try to explain to her later. But I heard you ask for me. I hope this means you are coming out to see us."

PLAYING THE GAME.

Purposely I said no word about the brief letter from my mother-in-law Arlen had intercepted, and which I even now had in my bag. I heard sounds from above which I knew meant that my doughty mother-in-law was on her way downstairs, and I knew that I must be exceedingly wary lest I say something which would upset her sense of the nicety which should hedge the bride and her family.

"It does," Mr. Veritzen replied, then went on as smoothly as if we had rehearsed the falsehood, and believed Mother Graham to have remained at the upstairs telephone.

"I just received your letter telling me of the wedding," he said, and stopped, giving me a chance to act my own role of incredulous dismay.

"Just received it?" I echoed. "We mailed it a week ago!"

"I know. The postmark tells me that," he said smoothly. "I do not know where the delay occurred, but I am investigating it. However, that is beside the mark. You must have thought me most remiss in not acknowledging it or calling upon you. May I come out this afternoon? It will be late, but I will travel as fast as possible."

"We should love to have you," I said heartily, aware that Mother Graham had descended the stairs and was standing close to me. Lillian was right behind her, but her hands upifted in a gesture of fatuity told me that she despaired of helping me in my mother-in-law's present mood. I must depend solely upon myself, I realized, and I answered Mr. Veritzen's inquiry as to whether it would be convenient for him to come out with an emphatic, "Yes, indeed," and then added, "Will you please hold the line a second? Someone is calling me."

I put down the receiver, whirled, took my mother-in-law by the arm and, beckoning to Lillian, led her a few feet away, then halted and spoke in a whisper, without heeding the outraged look upon her face.

"Our letter to him did not reach him until just now. He wants to come out to call. What do you think? Shall I ask him to dinner?"

My mother-in-law sniffed.

CHANCING ALL.

"Likely story!" she said, but said the grace to speak in low tones. "As for asking him to dinner," she added, "you am I that I should presume to give advice or counsel to the mistress of the house?"

I staked all on the throw of the dice.

"But I certainly am not going to ask him unless you wish" I said firmly.

"It is a matter of indifference to me," she said loftily. "However, for the sake of the children, I suppose it would be better be done. But keep my name out of it."

She swept out of the room, with head high. I went back to the 'phone.

"Do forgive me for keeping you so long," I begged, "but perhaps you can imagine how hectic these hours of hurried preparation are. I could not let you go, however, without exacting a promise from you to stay to dinner with us."

"Oh, but won't that be an imposition upon you at this time?" he protested, in the most approved manner.

"No, indeed," I countered, "if you do not mind 'pot luck' with us, everything will be all right."

"I have learned that 'pot luck' in your home is like an epicurean feast elsewhere," he said flamboyantly. "I shall be with you in less than three hours. Au revoir."

The receiver clicked, and Katie's voice breathlessly puntuated it.

"Mevis Graham; old vowans vant you qveeck upstairs."

Black Satin and a Coolie-Beret Go to Town

Partners in mid-summer chic are the simply-cut town suit of luxurious satin and white faille, and the huge beret with coolie-pointed crown that recently set the elite talking. The forward-sweep that marks the 1934 beret-hat has a decidedly Rembrandt air, as the reflected image shows. Satin lastex gloves are divinely comfortable. Ensemble from a Boston shop. Modelled by Miss Faith Chipman, of Brimmer Street.

By Annice Brink

BLACK SATIN has made a remarkably early debut this season, and like the well-known early bird, is garnering all sorts of triumphs as a result.

In this town suit it has the cool charm of a hidden forest pool, or a modernistic ebony mirror, or a penguin's back. Its frosty touch is the white faille, which bands the bateau neck of the frock and makes a soaring revers line on the jacket. Tailored enough for town, even quite early in the day, and smooth enough for the cocktail hour.

Hats are showing a tendency to swoop out and over the eyes, leaving the left side of the head completely out in the open. In black felt with white accents, this over-the-head beret with the coolie influence plainly to be seen, follows the Schiaparelli lead closely. The mirrored reflection shows its swoop out over the eyes. A pouchy black and white taffeta bag and white lastex sailor show with a full-length cuff and accessories with the proper compromise between gravity and giddiness the ensemble requires.

Miss Faith Chipman, the cameo blonde and blue-eyed poet debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reeve Chipman of Brimmer street, models.

'Dress Up' Hot Weather Meals

By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Wednesday morning broadcast over Station WEAF

SUMMER MEALS do worry you? They used to me. I first dread to have guests to tea, difficult dishes to prepare for these hot days. Make things and patiently execute dishes perfect in themselves with unmistakable touches that add interest and appeal.

Put the emphasis on the combining of the foods, their seasonings and their serving. For example, cold meats and potato salad sound a bit flat and uninteresting. But mound the potato salad which is seasoned with chives in the center of a large platter and arrange the meat around the edge decoratingly with watercress and radish roses—serve with a perfect accompaniment of rye bread and butter sandwiches and you will find that it is an entirely different meal.

Top it off with a custard—not an ordinary custard, but one that is cool, dainty and refreshing because it is perfectly textured and beautifully chilled—and you will have a meal that will bring satisfaction to the most epicurean of your guests.

These foods need not be expensive or involve a great deal of your time. They may even be concocted from foods on your emergency shelf.

There are no hard and fast rules for the preparation of these meals. Do not serve all hot or all cold foods at one meal. In warm weather we may think that the more cold foods in the meal the more satisfying it will be, but this is not so. Start the meal off with a hot soup or include a hot beverage. It is more satisfactory.

These and other suggestions we made today in our first cooking class of the Martha Lee Cooking School. If you would like any of the recipes we will be glad to send them to you. Just write in to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, and enclose a 3c stamp.

Skilled Play Often Saves Overbid

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣ (1)	Pass	1 ♢	Pass
2 ♦ (2)	Pass	3 ♣ (3)	Pass
7 ♣ (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) The weakness of South's third suit hearts makes a two-bid inadvisable.

(2) Using the practically Forcing feature of the "One over One" principle.

(3) North's distribution justifies the three-club response, despite the scarcity of honor strength.

(4) A definite overbid. It might have been the heat, it might have been excessive faith in the bidding of North, or it might have been an effort on the part of South to get back all the points he had lost earlier in the day. South should have temporized by bidding three hearts, eventually carrying the bidding to at least game and leaving the decision as to whether it was to be the seven-point bid to three.

Tell me frankly: "Does Old Gold's throat-ease make it a better cigarette for Women?"

asks Carole Lombard

[RECENT OLD GOLD CONVERT]

Dear Miss Lombard:—

You will agree that all smokers, both men and women, prefer a cigarette that's easy on the throat . . . rather than harsh and raspy.

But Old Gold's throat-ease has an additional appeal. The absence of artificial flavoring in Old Gold not only makes it a smoother smoke . . . but a cleaner smoke . . . less apt to stain the teeth or to leave objectionable odor in the clothes or on the breath.

We do not say that Old Gold is the only good cigarette for the fastidious woman smoker. But we do say there is no purer or finer cigarette made.

Sincerely,

P. LORILLARD COMPANY, INC.

ARREST NEARS IN JEWEL ROBBERY

This Is Life
by
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Robert E. Rogers

Occasionally one runs across a news despatch which makes one stop and rub one's eyes for its very absurdity. Usually the details which might explain it are missing and one goes down to one's grave ignorant of the reason for such apparent foolishness. For instance:

London July 8 UP The novels of H G Wells were banned today from schools under the jurisdiction of the London County Council, which now has a Socialist majority. Wells's works, the council explained, are unsuitable for children.

That reminds me, somehow, of a story that used to circulate in Cambridge, one which has to do with the very highbrow wife of a very highbrow Harvard professor. The wife being dissatisfied with the schools available in Cambridge, both public and private, collected a few children of other highbrow professors in the neighborhood and started a "modern" school. The story was to the effect that visitors to the school found the self-appointed mistress solemnly reading aloud from the works of H. G. Wells to her little group of ten-year-olds.

From the above dispatch a visitor from Mars would be driven to the conclusion that H. G. Wells was a notorious Tory, a Bourbon, a Fascist, whose doctrines were strictly anti-socialistic. Otherwise why should the all-Socialist L. C. C ban his works as counter-revolutionary?

There may be various reasons one can guess at in the absence of details. Historically, of course, Wells was one of the most active members, a generation ago of the Fabian Society, which worked devotedly and intelligently for what we call municipal or state socialism. It was a mild enough socialism, believing that the way to proceed is by strictly political action, getting control of the County Councils, going in for what the English call "municipal trading" and we call "municipal ownership." The Fabians also advocated the abolition of obsolete administrative areas, thus making political boundaries and economic boundaries coincide, as in Mr. Curley's dream of a properly administered metropolitan area for Boston and its suburbs.

Very mild Socialism, as I have said, both thoughtful and influential. The present British Labor Party and such political triumphs as that of a Socialist London Council owe as much to the old Fabians, perhaps, as to any other political influence. Wells' books of the early 1900 period preached a socialism of "love and fine thinking," moderate in its philosophy, free from the dream of violence, not Marxian in any orthodox sense of the word; a dream of a world in which good will, disinterested thinking, pure science, applied engineering, and biology would make this a world fit for human beings to live in. No one was more optimistic about the possibility of human amelioration than was the Wells of those high and far off times.

Lately, of course, he has taken a firm stand against Bolshevism and Communism and in his latest book, "The Shape of Things to Come," seemed to hint that when our present civilization goes to pieces it can be restored only by a kind of armed fascism, enforced by the military air patrols. And yet in "Meanwhile" he wrote bitterly against Italian fascism. Anyway, he is no longer orthodox. And he never was.

Perhaps it is the rather liberal views of Wells on the subject of marriage that offends the L. C. C. That would be curious, since the traditional socialist view of such matters is about as liberal as can be. I confess I cannot guess at what the censors are up to and why. Perhaps the clue lies in the word "children." What does the L. C. C. mean by children? I take it that by children we mean, usually human beings from the age of five to the age of thirteen or fourteen. After that they are adolescents.

I would agree heartily that H. G. Wells's works are unsuitable for "children," if only because they would be too long and adult and dull for them. And probably for all but exceptional adolescents, although intelligent boys and girls in the mid teens ought to enjoy largely the early pseudo-scientific romances, full of monstrosities and horrors, recently reprinted in an omnibus volume entitled "Seven Famous Novels" (Knopf).

Possibly the council is rebuking the tendency of "advanced" teachers to force upon their pupils reading far beyond their capacities. Occasionally you will find some pedagogue enthusiast who twists her pupil's reading all out of focus because of her own enthusiasm for pacifism or communism or industrial democracy or liberalism in marriage or something of the sort.

At least, so far as we can tell, the L. C. C. isn't banning all H. G. Wells's books for adult reading simply because they are not suitable for children. That would be our American method and a characteristically stupid one. The L. C. C., I hope, would agree that adult literature and adult entertainment need not necessarily be judged by standards suitable for children. But Americans have always had in them a streak which prefers prohibition to temperance—and always learns too late.

Anyway, the works of H. G. Wells, most influential of living Englishmen, will be published and read still long after the London County Council has gone Tory again.

3 CITIES FIGHT ODOR

CURLEY BID FOR FUND WATCHED

Embarrassed by a smell wandering around without an owner, Cambridge, Watertown, Brighton and Somerville were still puzzling a very disagreeable odor around 9 o'clock this morning and trying to pass it on to each other's town.

Not that the odor isn't already in each others community. It is what Cambridge, Watertown, Brighton and Somerville each wish to do is disown the odor as a native because even their best friends have started telling them about it.

Cambridge frankly says it believes the odor comes from Watertown, Brighton or Somerville, and thus Cambridge is given favorite.

However, in Somerville it is declared that this is just so much silliness and that Cambridge had best look to her own odors.

Cambridge having started it, Brookline and Watertown also fought back at Cambridge, but the odor has gone on smugly eating and just as smugly

Few stepped out of the limelight with more [illegible] than Geraldine Farrar, the singer. When she felt she had given her public her best, she vanished from the headlines almost overnight. Her box-office value was and is potential. Only a few intimates see her and when she dines in public it is at some obscure restaurant. No one has ever taken her place with American girlhood.

I once was an idol straighten up in a topple and hold his pedestal—at least for the evening. He was a stopping movie star who came on late at a benefit. The crowd was tired, restless, disrespectful and tossed him a juicy raspberry. He flinched as though lash d with a whip, stepped to the stage edge with arms extended and in a quavering voice pleaded: "You convince me I'm washed up. But let me hang [illegible] here long enough to dry." And he finished to a [illegible].

The most accomplished duelist with hecklers from the stage was Julius Tannen in his chatterbox monologue days. Those who had watched him parry thrusts in the code duello used to encourage some unsuspecting smart alec to rib Tannen from a stage box. Just to see the fireworks. In a flash the comedian would plough under the heckler and leave him floundering before a howling audience. Joe Frisco can handle all comers, too on a cabaret floor. The great gift in taking on hecklers is not to lose one's temper. It was the one thing Rudy Vallee did not learn in his protracted floor show run on Broadway. He flushed red and invited them outside.

Those sheep-like dogs called Bedlingtons are in high favor on Long Island estates. The first of the species was brought to America about nine years ago by the English actor, Cyril Maude. Despite their lamb-like docility, they are terrors to prowlers and will die gallantly to protect children.

The Bar Building in the 40's is an enormous structure housing only lawyers. While waiting for a friend in his car near the entrance yesterday I found a sudden interest in ingoing and outgoing visitors. Those going in seemed to walk glum and hesitant. But they came out stepping briskly and in aparently high spirits. Somehow one expects the reverse, visiting a lawyer.

Kyrle Bellew, matinee idol of his era, suffered from rose colds. The sight of a single rose sent him into a coughing, sneezing and water-eyed fit. On tour in San Francisco he went to a dinner party. A huge bowl of roses centering the table touched him off. His hostess insisted he be brave, walk up and smell them. So goaded he approached choking and gasping in an almost apoplectic frenzy. At last he peered over and smelled. They were artificial. After he never had a rose cold again.

A little French cafeteria attendant on Madison avenue and I have more fun. At occasional times I try out my taxicab French. Today, stopping in for a quick cup of coffee, I ordered: "Cafe." She inquired: "Au lait?" I replied "Oui, oui." And added: "Also la spoon." We just whooped, hollered and carried on.

BOY DROWNS IN CHARLES RIVER

Joseph Taylor, nine of Barton street, West End, was drowned while bathing with many other children in Charles river basin, off Charles street.

The child would have sunk without trace had not a woman who was seated on the shore noticed him disappear. Sergeant William J. Morley and Officer John C. Quinn of the metropolitan police recovered the body in 10 minutes but were unsuccessful in reviving the boy.

WALKOUT AT FALL RIVER

Fall River July 11—Employes of the Kerr Mills of the American Thread Company walked out, as a result of what both strikers and mill officials said was a demand by the local American Federation of Labor Union that a closed shop be maintained.

T. R. Louis, agent of the company, said the closed shop was contrary to textile code provisions, and added that employes may be allowed to join the union but not forced to do so. He said the mill would open today.

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

Hubbell Turns In Perfect Inning; The Diamond Stomacher

Braves Ground Keeper Weeps; British Idea Of Boxing Robbery

By AUSTEN LAKE

FROM THE ANGLE of scientific baseball, it is a pity that Carl Hubbell, Giants' pitching ace, could not have been allowed to stay in the All Star game after his spectacular first three innings at the Polo Grounds.

Austen Lake

Picture the feat of having the first two American League stars reach base safely and then striking out the A. L.'s three leading sluggers, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx. Then, following that, in the next inning, by fanning Al Simmons, Joe Cronin and Vernon Gomez. It is the third time in nine months that the cream of the American League crop has faced Hubbell's screw ball, and they do not like it.

I have heard fully a dozen versions of Hubbell's favorite pitch, which is supposed to be the left-handed version of Christy Mathewson's famed "fadeaway." These reports vary from a slow curve that falls away from the batter at reducing speed, to a fast "floater" like the knuckle ball.

At any rate it proves that, regardless of the lively ball and its pernicious influence on the game, batters still cannot hit what they cannot see. Hubbell, according to Marty McManus, last year's manager of the Red Sox now third basing for the Braves, has more and trickier pitching stuff than "Lefty" Grove ever had at the height of his career.

"Grove blinded you with speed," says McManus, "but Hubbell has a full bag of tricks, sharpshooting, control, and the screw ball. Most pitchers would be delighted to have as much as any one of these things. He has them all."

In addition, Hubbell's style of throwing is easy on the arm, forecasting longer life than Grove, who now appears to have burned out his arm filament with the heat of his pitching fury.

ON THE EVENING of July 18, when Ed Don George, who looks more classically Greek than his native Greek versus, Jim Londos, steps onto the platform at Fenway Park, he will have the famous Diamond Belt trained round his portly middle.

This belt, reputed to be worth $10,000 and containing silver and gold medallions set with jewels, has reposed in Paul Bowser's Chauncy street safe since Gus Sonnenberg snatched it away from Ed "Strangler" Lewis in 1928.

There is a mystery connected with the belt. For, previous to the Sonnenberg victory when Lewis used to wear it like a stomacher on entering the ring, it contained a 6 carat gem diamond valued at $4000 in the central panel. But when it came time to hand it over to the new champion, the big jewel was missing and only the empty socket where it had been remained.

Now, I am informed from a confidential source, that a certain lovely Boston lady possesses the historic stone and wears it in a finger ring. At any rate Bowser was put to some pain and expense to procure another diamond for the vacant setting, which cost him $3000.

The belt is George's best evidence that his title has descended in a direct line from the last undisputed holder, Lewis. Its history dates back to Frank Gotch, who had it made after winning the world championship from Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, in 1911.

GEORGE HUNT Braves ground keeper, is upset about the condition of his right field turf following Monday night's boxing bout. The ring, as you know, was pitched in the angle where the right field pavilion, jury box and centerfield stands join.

During the progress of the bout, news photographers snapped their patent light bulbs around the edge of the scaffold, throwing away the bulbs as fast as they were used. As the crowd shuffled around, these bulbs were broken and the glass ground into the soil.

So, Hunt and his ground crew have been crawling around on hands and knees picking up the sharp slivers, lest, later this month, some high-priced National League outfielder slip and gash his expensive flesh. Hunt favors supplying every camera man with a bulb-caddy in the future.

THE BRITISH VIEWPOINT, always unique concerning American sport, is that Primo Carnera was 'robbed' of his title in the recent bout with Max Baer. This opinion, expressed in several London journals, was based on the moving pictures and the fact that, in English prize ring rules, a light fleck of the glove counts as heavily as a powerful haymaker.

Also, the British critics fail to understand the American "foul rule," which deprives a fighter of the round, and only that one, in which he strikes an opponent low.

As a matter of fact, English writers are correct in one detail, though wrong in their charge of chicanery and robbery. That detail is that Carnera was winning the fight on points up to the final round, as evidenced by the round by-round tabulation of the two judges and referee as printed after the fight, giving Baer a total of 17 rounds, Carnera 15, with one even.

Londoners are finnicky about prize ring details, and their judges are careful point counters. One recalls the time that Willie Ritchie risked his lightweight crown against Freddy Welsh in a 20-round bout. When the total points were added, Welsh was found the winner by a score of 251½ to 251, despite Ritchie's greater aggressiveness and cleaner hitting.

In London a fouled fighter is awarded the bout instantly, a device that Phil Scott, the former British heavy who is now operating a ladies' beauty parlor, used to advantage. In the U. S., since the invention and universal use of the patent groin protector, a fighter who falls, claiming a foul, is counted out and then examined by a commissioned physician who sits near ringside. If, in the opinion of the doctor, the stricken fighter was disabled by the low blow, he is accorded a reversal of decision and declared the winner.

RIPPER COLLINS, Cardinals' first baseman, saves every broken bat he can find, using them in construction of a picket fence in the rear of his Rochester home. It must be a great temptation to baseball playing boyhood in his neighborhood . . . The late John McGraw forbade the use of beer and liquor to his Giants players, in or out of uniform. But Bill Terry, his successor, not only permits beer drinking to his men, but has the beverage chilled and on tap in the club house dressing room after games at the Polo Grounds.

Hubbell's Feat Ranks With Mound Epics

By Davis J. Walsh

International News Service Sports Editor

New York, July 11. They used to talk about the late Rube Waddell calling in his fielders and the retiring the side unaided although as far as the major leagues were concerned this was sheer fiction, designed to entertain stunted adult minds.

They still remember Matty as pitching up in Boston in that final game of the 1912 series just before and immediately after Merkle and Snodgrass put the kibosh on the great master.

There was also the time that Vic Aldridge went in with a [illegible] with three on for the final out, not to mention countless cases of pinch-pitching that both clutter and adorn the records.

But all seemed pale and insipid by contrast with Carl Hubbell's successive strikeouts of Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons and Cronin in the first and second innings of yesterday's [illegible]

[illegible] of a scoreless ball game [illegible] for the second straight year. As a matter of fact, after Hubbell delivered his epic performance nothing mattered. We had witnessed the historic. The last was not enough.

Thumbing back through the pages of memory, I recall Hubbell's [illegible] straight victories against the White Sox in 1910. But, then, some of them weren't trying and none had quite the class of the great Trinity that strode in the gate with two on and none out yesterday and were blown down like wheat in a wind.

COMMODITIES AID STOCK ADVANCE

New York, July 11 — Soaring grain prices and strength in other commodities today brought a continuation of yesterday's rise in the stock markets.

Volume showed a further expansion with turnover promising to hit a million shares for the first time in more than a month.

Wheat jumped the 5-cent a bushel limit at the start, and other grains soared forward in response to the sensationally bullish government report issued after the close of trading yesterday. Cotton hit new highs on the advance with a rise of 75 cents a bale, and other commodities were strong. Rails improved further and the utilities steadied.

The only stock groups that failed to join the advance were the utilities and liquors. The former showed some by the sharp decline in power output for the week along with the Columbia Gas & Electric dividend omission, while the latter were hit by persistent selling of rational distillers.

Sales to noon approximated 350,000 shares.

Stocks were moved higher in moderately active trading in the first hour. Gains in leaders ranged from fractions to 2 points or more. Lead gave one of its spectacular performances, soaring more than 3 points. Case Threshing rose 4 points higher. Boston & Maine resumed a gain of a point.

Public Service was off a point. Atlas Powder was better than a point higher.

Hudson Union Gas was a point higher. Other utilities showing gains were Columbian Carbon, International Nickel, Worcester Gas, 1 point; International Printing Ink, was up well over a point. U. S. Steel was a major fraction above the last closing price.

Gains of a point or so appeared in such issues as Allied Chemical, American Can, American Sumatra Tobacco, Atchison, Corn Products, Delaware & Hudson, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Electric Auto Lite and U. S. Smelting.

Sales to 11 p. m. approximated 750,000 shares.

Pointing out that public works projects and the automotive industry are the chief supports of steel producers at present, "Iron Age" estimated the operating rate of the industry has advanced to 27 per cent of capacity, up six points from the 3 week ago.

"Early estimates of July automobile production," the magazine said, "are unreasonably conservative, output being estimated at high as 280,000 units. Price reductions revealed in the model for June sales then had been anticipated and automobile executives are hopeful the present buying wave may extend into August."

Steel scrap prices also weakened again and the "Iron Age" scrap composite has declined to $10.58 a ton, the lowest this year.

The holiday last week, together with sharp curtailment of industrial operations, reduced the output of electricity substantially. The margin of gain over 1933, according to the Edison Electric Institute, narrowed to 1.10 percent from 2 percent the preceding week and 5 the narrowest gain over 1933 shown this year.

Second quarter earnings statements of important corporations started to reach Wall street. The United Fruit Co., among the first to report, disclosed profit of about $6,377,000 before Federal taxes in the first six months against $5,675,000 in the like period last year.

The dollar was steady and foreign exchange trading. The British pound opened off 1-16 of a cent at $5.01 13-16. French francs slipped 1/32 of a cent to 6.58⅝ cents.

BELLAS HESS PRICES OFF

The mid-summer catalogue of National Bellas Hess, Inc., New York and Kansas City mail order house, now being mailed to a selected list of 1,800,000 customers, quotes prices which will be the lowest of the year, according to Cecil D. Berry, president of the company.

"The booklet is designed to stimulate business during what is normally the dull period in the mail order field, and we are confident the low priced items will produce a satisfactory volume," Mr. Barry said. "Our business is the first to reflect the drought in the west and northwest states late in May, but since June 12 there has been a decided change in trend, and sales have shown a very encouraging improvement."

Mail order houses usually start the first of the year indicies the necessity of keeping rural customers' power dollars at higher prices, Mr. Berry said. "While the number of customers on the books in spring is substantially ahead of the same period last year, the total sales volume has not shown as much a small increase. The purchasing power of the rural economy must be kept abreast with higher prices, so that more units can be purchased, if production in eastern factories is to be increased."

National Bellas Hess also reports a $10,000 new equipment budget for four months of 1934 as compared with 166,000 during the like period in 1933.

Stockholders of Dairy Corp. Gain

National Dairy Products Corp. had 69,653 common stockholders as of June 30 compared with 68,850 at the end of 1933 and 66,566 on June 30, 1933.

"LOMBARDO-LAND" RADIO FEATURE WILL START FRIDAY NIGHT

Music and Fun on Air Waves at 10 P. M.

By N. F. T.

Friday on the way is the jinxy 13th alright, yet the old lucky adage of 7 come 11 applies today, if you pause to consider the numerical sum and day for a minute. Get it? Perhaps listener good fortune impends with announcement that "Lombardo-Land" is the title of a brand new half hour coast to coasting ready and waiting (WEEI) on the stroke of 10 o'clock tonight.

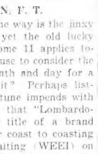
No need to identify Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians music, I'm sure. This new setting is one during which Guy and his rare full Gaucho go it is for everything they know about music, meaning plenty. Costar starring with the baton boss, the program's host Wee Barnes, back into the mike work spotlight. Pat is the soldier-philosopher, poet, actor and popular radio personality who wrote "A-Buck-an-Leave" and received a citation from General Pershing for said piece. Pat takes care of the humor and narration, while the Lombardos make music of modern and semi-classic character.



Guy Lombardo

Slight alteration attends the Fred Allen funfest (WEEI) as of 9 to 10 this evening. Fred launches his new "Town Hall Tonight" series. Some striking "heavy" melodrama is part of the plan. Then, too, the voice of James Melton is added to afford topnotch tenoring.

* * *

That thirty minutes of the "Charity Musicale" as arranged through WHDH from 8:45 to 9:15 tonight sounds as worth while as the Massachusett's Women's Hospital cause for which it is being staged. Mary Dyer, soprano and Gyula Denes, baritone are the guest soloists and a brief message from Mrs. Howard Spaulding of Belmont, will round out the presentation.

LOCAL LATHER

Hub radio editors are eating for one another to determine which shall be on a Yankee Network board to judge talent in a pending contest. Bertha Brainard is sending up his Cascades Roof engagement, which means his WBZ dance tune airs soon. . . . The same is true for Charlie Hector, the current Hotel Touraine maestro. . . . Vic (Tattler) Whitman went on the waves (WEEI) Monday night to poke fun at N. E. T. as a "Broadway Vet in Boston" but is quite a proficient red and reeler, but should know this, N. E. T., has been overtaken, signed Never Fail, after Truth when trout tales are told. . . . Ruth Chilton again catches the After Dinner Revue call (WEEI) to sing at 7:30 this evening. Looks as though little WLEY would be moved from Lewiston to Lowell before Fall. Shifting will most likely mean an additional Yankee Network chain link for New England.

You Hear Him on the Radio

BUDDY CLARK

Buddy Clark . . . One of the youngest successful local stars on the air . . . Being only 22 . . . On the 26th of this month . . . And a native of West Roxbury . . . Attended Wendell Phillips School . . . The Washington Junior High School . . . And High School of Commerce . . . Where he was president of the dramatic club . . . Sang with school band in the years . . . And put the shot on the track team . . . Although finding time to play amateur theatricals . . . At the West End House . . . Mother always liked his idea . . . Thus of being a professional entertainer . . . But Dad wanted a lawyer in the house . . . And so Buddy took two years . . . At Northeastern Law School.

Actually, entertainment professionally two years ago . . . At the Metropolitan Theater . . . Giving imitations . . . And singing a couple of tunes . . . Then sang on several air programs . . . Including White Rabbit Billiard . . . Atlas England Coke . . . Atlas Finance and Clearcenters . . . And now . . . For 18 months . . . Has been on the I. J. Fox program.

In music . . . Ted Lewis, Paul Whiteman and Al Jolson are favorites . . . In the movies Bing Crosby, William Powell, Wallace Beery and W. C. Fields . . . And Buddy can imitate them all.

Likes fan mail . . . Has a weakness for Italian food . . . And admires people in the sports world who can "take it" . . . With his own ambitions to become a movie star . . . And to be nationally known on the air.

Tomorrow's Radio Personality Portrait will be that of Bette Brooks, Bostonian, who has sung her way out of soprano-ity.

Beach Is Closed Against Nudists

Dennisport, July 11—The trend toward moonlight nudism was given today as the reason for the closing of a private beach owned by William R. Martineau, Boston leather merchant. Martineau followed the public the use of the beach for the past 10 years but has erected a fence as a result of nocturnal bathing parties.

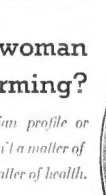
WHAT can a woman do to be charming?

It isn't a matter of a Grecian profile or gowns with a Paris label. It isn't a matter of age or money. It is often a matter of health.



Health means a clear skin . . . sparkling eyes . . . bubbling vitality . . . steady nerves and a dependable disposition. Radiant health is the foundation of beauty and charm. The woman who is healthy and friendly and interested in the world about her cannot fail to be attractive to others.

If you are not as well as you want to be, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Remember that 98 out of 100 women say, "It helps me!"

"I was a disagreeable old spit-cat!"

—says Mrs. Davidson

"I was so nervous I wanted to scream. Your Tablets helped me wonderfully. My husband remarked last night of the difference he sees in me. I am not that grouchy, disagreeable old spit-cat that I was three weeks ago. I am a cheerful, joking young girl again."—Mrs. Clarence B. Davidson, 1311 Milburn Blvd., Mishawaka, Indiana.

"All the fun was gone out of life—"

"All the fun was gone out of life. I was very nervous and had terrible backaches. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a great medicine for a woman at any time of life but especially at Change and before motherhood. My daughter Lucille feels 100% better since she took it. It helped my daughter-in-law, too."—Mrs. S. Matushek, 10907 Edbrooke Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

If periodic pain is dragging you down, ask your druggist for Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. Mrs. Marion Sidor, 5436 Grace Street, Chicago, Illinois, says: "I had severe pains and terrible headaches periodically. My husband saw your Tablets advertised and bought me a bottle. They helped me wonderfully — stopped all the pain."

It's old fashioned to suffer. Silly, too, when so many stores sell Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They bring welcome relief from cramping pains, "blue" spells, periodic backache and headache and similar discomforts which undermine a woman's charm.

By L. F. ROSS,
Boston Wing Commander

Hello, Junior Birdmen! Because many of you boys and girls have gone to camps, summer resorts, beaches and other vacation spots for a few weeks, our membership is getting a new spurt and today's mail contained more than 130 new applications.

Yours is the fastest-growing organization in the world, you know, and the Boston wing, with which you are affiliated, now has more than 7600 members. We are actually expected the daily rate of new memberships to fall off during the hot months.

Imagine our agreeable surprise, then, when we find that it is gaining because you are wearing your gold and silver wings in places where some boys and girls have never heard of the Junior Birdmen.

John Wigley

Well, keep up the good work, members. Tell your chums and acquaintances in your temporary homes about the organization and its plans and purposes. You can help the new fledglings, too, by explaining the features, contests and activity provided through your daily columns. And you can inform them on how to become squadron commanders and captains by organizing their own groups of eight or more.

Remember, those of you who are away at camps or summer resorts or are planning to go, that the Junior Birdmen column in the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser will continue to keep in touch with you and print news of your activity.

Have these papers sent to you or arrange to get them near your camp or vacation spot. Then you can keep up with the news and participate in the contests. The next one will be the "Funphone" contest and through this you might win some extra spending money while you're away. Wouldn't that be "just too bad"?

And in the meantime, send us pictures of yourselves and of your camp doings or take a few moments to write us a letter. Other members will be interested to hear where you are staying and how you are spending your time. We'll print the news and pictures as often as space permits.

Some of the boys at camp write that they have taken materials with them and are building model planes in anticipation of the next competition. That's a good idea. Others say they are trying to increase the size of their squadrons, and that's not a bad idea either.

Among the 130 applications we received today were from boys and girls addressing their letters from resorts and camps in Maine, along Cape Cod and other vacation places in New England. We can't print all the names of the new fledglings we welcome into our organization but here are a few:

Grace Bonini, of Monponsett, Mass.; Harold Pavlowski, of Hyland Haven, Mass.; Bob Morris, Camp Morse, Lee, Mass., and Grace Baker, of Kearsarge, N. H.

From the Cape are these: Clarence F. Smith, of Wellfleet, Normand A. Methot, of Orleans; Robert Hall, of Chilmark, and Harold Paskowski, of Plymouth. And from Maine are Arthur Pete, Winslow, and Stephen Draper, of Brunswick.

Also welcome are Dorothy Bourdeau, Bob Alva and Arthur Allen, of Lewiston; Bernard Bourdeau, of Mallard, and Abner Hewins, of Yarmouth.

Can You Make Up an Aero-Gram?

The following "Aero-Grams" were written by Jo Smiles of Everett, who is donating three copies of Lindy's "We" to each of the three winners of the national model plane Derby on July 28:

"I've joined the Junior Birdmen,
It only costs a dime;
I'm having lots of fun,
C'mon in, fellows! The air is fine."

"A boy dreamt he was on the wing,
Sitting in the pilot's seat,
Guiding her with the joy stick,
The sensation was hard to beat."

"The boy stood on the airship,

If you send in your membership application from vacation resorts, camps and other temporary residences, don't forget to let us know your permanent home address when you return. We need the information for our files so we can communicate with you at all times.

Please let us know the names of stores, supply houses and other places where you can buy your model plane materials at reasonable cost. Other members may not know of these places and it will help them save money if you give them the information.

We are anxious to have reports and other activities from Squadrons 1, 2, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10. These units are headed by Commanders James N. Quinn, Jr., Betty Johnson, Leon H. Levesque, Charles Cruikshanks, Thomas J. Murphy, Arthur Masson, and Philip Dobra. All commanders or captains should report regularly at their activities.

A stop watch and a fountain pen were lost at the Flamingo Ball just Saturday's model plane meet. Will any Junior Birdman having any knowledge of these please communicate with our headquarters, 100 Summer street, or call Liberty 4000.

The Junior Birdman, whose pictures are printed today, is John Wigley, 11, of 533½ East Second st., Boston.

Mate Sues for Axe on Buffet

Forrest E. Wiley, of Middleton, agreed in Salem divorce court that he could "take it" during a stormy marital life with his wife, but when she plied an axe to an old family heirloom buffet it proved the "breaking point."

Wiley told the story in opposing his wife's suit for separate support. Mrs. Wiley told Judge Harriet R. Dow that the buffet was "an old one-stuff Noah's Ark." Judge Dow took the case under advisement.

Walker and Wife Open Charity Fete

London, July 11 (INS)—Betty Compton, actress wife of former Mayor James J. Walker of New York, formally opened a fete today on the grounds of the estate of The Duke of Newcastle at Sorking. The fete is a charity affair to aid a society for the care of waifs and strays.

"Jimmy" Walker was among the crowd of distinguished persons and residents of the district that attended.

West Royalston Suicide

West Royalston, July 11—The mysterious disappearance of Clarence M. Arnold 13 months ago was cleared today with the finding of his body in the woods here. A discharged rifle lay close by and Medical Examiner James F. Cuddy declared Arnold a suicide.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1934

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

Welcome U. S. Navy; Keep It Invincible

ACROSS historic waters, which decades ago heard the thunder of cannon from contending ships and rang with the cheers of many Yankee victories, the Fleet is coming in.

So Provincetown is engaged in getting ready for another of its annual big "Navy Days." Governor Joseph B. Ely will receive a nineteen gun salute when he participates in the inspirational program planned for Saturday.

Around thirty ships, making up a third of the United States fleet, are expected "in" by tomorrow. Their base for several weeks will be Provincetown.

Welcoming the Navy is an old story to Provincetown, but one that never loses its savor.

Today numbers of our once powerful fighting ships are sadly past their prime. Others are obsolete.

THE lesson that should be drawn from the spectacle this year is that we need warships of more modern designing and more fighting craft.

If the nations of the world again become embroiled in war, America should have the sea strength that would enable us to stand aloof.

And let us bear in mind that the weaker nations seldom think it to their advantage to attack the strong.

This fact is one of the best arguments for sane preparedness that can be advanced.

A fractional part of the war debts owed us by our former European allies would build and maintain a Navy that would make an attack on us impossible for decades to come.

We aren't getting that money, but we still have the means to possess a Navy that can guard our shores as they were guarded in the glorious days of past sea triumphs.

Make and keep our Navy invincible.

Morgenthau's Professors

Statistics easily available at the Office of Education in Washington will tell how many college professors there are in the United States.

Another set of statistics would be required to enumerate the professors who are now in the "Brain Trust"—but alas, the number increases at such a rate that even the adding machines must be running behind.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is responsible for the latest and largest increase.

Wanting a couple of surveys made, and having accustomed himself to dealing in astronomical figures, Mr. Morgenthau did the thing on the scale grandiose.

At one clip he called in how many professors? FOUR-TEEN!

And thereupon the Secretary of the Treasury departed incommunicado and alone for "somewhere in old Wyoming."

Truly, as Cicero said, times change.

When Hamilton became our first Secretary of the Treasury there was not even one professor in the offing.

Yet Hamilton created the American monetary system, which has stood for more than a hundred and forty years. As Daniel Webster said, it "sprang from his brain" as Minerva sprang full-panoplied from the brain of Jove.

Salmon P. Chase of New Hampshire got along without professors in financing the Civil War and establishing a national bank system; and when the time came for resumption of specie payments and retirement of "greenback" money, it was not a professor but old John Sherman who remarked sapiently and simply that "the way to resume is to resume."

In fact, in every previous great crisis, the Treasury Department, as well as the rest of the Government, managed things without any recourse to professorial hocus pocus—and managed very well!

Which prompts the mild surmise that perhaps brain trusting is not the same thing as trusting brains, after all.

Tunnel and Tolls

It was expecting too much if anyone supposed a toll could be at once fixed which would enable the new $19,000,000 East Boston tunnel to pay for itself from the very start.

And perhaps it was also expecting too much if anyone thought the tunnel could be made to pay for itself. That remains to be seen. The politicians were quite optimistic about it at the time.

Now there is talk, which appears premature, that the public which doesn't use the tunnel will be called on to help pay for it.

If it should happen that the tunnel is freed from toll charges in a few years, the action would not be without precedent.

Before that can take place there are numerous experiments which ought and probably will be made to see how nearly self-supporting the biggest underground experiment of its kind in Boston's history can become.

Our 'Easy' Motorists

Our Massachusetts motorists are called "easy" because they allow the diversion of between $9,000,000 and $10,000,000 from gasoline taxes for uses not connected with the automobile.

This diversion is made despite the understanding, when politicians put the "gas" tax into effect, that the funds raised from it would be used only for highway purposes.

Perhaps the motorists are not as "easy" as they appear. Most of them pay other taxes than those connected with automobiling.

And perhaps they realize they would have to pay in some way, even if the automobile taxes burden were lightened. The facts rather than the justice of the case have to be considered.

The Meanest Vandals

The meanest piece of vandalism perpetrated in a long time has come to light at York Beach, Me.

York residents erected a monument depicting the Goddess of Liberty as a memorial to those who served the ancient town during the World War.

Now vandals have forced the statue from its base and damaged it, probably beyond repair. A reward is offered for their arrest and conviction. We hope it is collected.

Even to mar a monument that honors those who died or faced death for America's sake is one of the lowest acts imaginable.

Prodigal Son

By Winifred Black

THE PRODIGAL SON—I have never been very much in sympathy with him, have you?

I've always been inclined to wonder how the other son felt about it when he saw his father run down the road to embrace the prodigal, when he knew just how often his poor old father had lain awake night after night worrying over that same prodigal.

Winifred Black

The other son stayed at home and worked on his father's farm or whatever they had in place of a farm in those strange far-off days.

He counted the sheep, he tended the herds, he saw to it that the men and the maids were full fed and comfortable.

No ewe fainted for lack of water—not one in the great herd of fattening sheep—not while the other son stayed at home to attend to things.

He worked early and he worked late and he worked, he said, doubtless, for the mere love of his good old father.

Yes, there was a sense of duty, too, no doubt, and an eye to the future—why not? Shouldn't a man's son, who stayed by him in his age, look forward to some sort of an honest inheritance?

Anyhow he stayed at home and the prodigal ran away and had a grand and glorious time of it, spending his money, eating, drinking and carousing with all sorts of good-for-nothings, male and female, until he hadn't a cent in his pocket or a particle of credit anywhere on earth.

I suppose he short of hated to go back and own up that he'd been wrong all the time.

Don't you suppose he wondered what his father would say to him? And I haven't a doubt in the world he knew well the word what the other son would say.

But the father saw him coming afar off and ran to meet him and embrace him and gave orders that the fatted calf be killed and a great feast be spread to welcome the prodigal home again.

I never could quite see the justice of all this. Of course it was human enough but was it right?

A friend threw a great light on the subject the other day: we were talking of a prodigal son we both knew, and she said:

"Oh I know he's no good—but I do wish he'd come home, he does make the most delicious Welsh rarebit, and he'll be sure to know a lot of outrageous new songs by this time."

I wonder if that's how the father of the original prodigal son felt about it?

Did he forgive the prodigal because he thought he ought to give him another chance, or did he just kind-a want the prodigal around?

What do you think?

WOMAN'S WIT

"A woman should never seek to be witty, for wit is something that has been denied to women," once remarked Mr. A. B. See.

And, lots of men secretly agree with him. Oh yeah? That depends on your idea of "wit." Every now and then I HAVE to defend my own sex against this masculine tradition! I could quote pages and pages of wise cracks from women — but I haven't the space. So, here are a few.

Helen Rowland

"Woman's freedom is God's Greatest gift to man." Ursula Parrot. (My favorite.)

"A man takes his last look at his wife at the altar." Dorothy Dix.

"Marriage is all very well but it seems like carrying love too far." Texas Guinan.

"It's not the men in your life—but the life in your men." Mae West.

"Rouge is God's gift to women." Juliet Wilbor Tompkins.

"He must have been weaned on a dill pickle." (Credited to Alice Longworth.)

"A bachelor is a collection of habits, entirely surrounded by ego." Nixon Greeley-Smith.

"A man's heart is li'k a barber shop, in which the cry is always 'Next!'" Helen Rowland. (My goodness, how she hates herself!)

"Tickle men so prize a first kiss that they never take a second—from the same girl." Minna T. Antrim.

"Three things there be I shall have 'ill I die—Laughter and hope, and a sock in the eye!" Dorothy Parker.

"I would rather raise hell than chickens!" Eleanor Patterson.

"I left my husband because he believed in the triple standard of morality—one for me and two for himself." Lillian Day in "Kiss and Tell."

"In New York, everyone is so busy and direct, I haven't been insulted once." Belle Livingstone.

"It is easy to get married, but it takes up too much time trying to stay married." Mary Garden.

"Understanding woman has long been the greatest masculine sport." Florence G. Seahury.

"Sometimes when I am low in the mind I think I'll end it all by getting married." Tallulah Bankhead.

And, if A—beg pardon, anybody's idea of wit-and-humor is making faces or throwing things, he ought to SEE the faces that Marie Dressler can make—and the way a woman can throw a bridgelamp.

I have always claimed that the reason for a woman's lack of a sense of humor was that she didn't DARE laugh at a man—the only thing she saw to laugh at! But, NOW what?

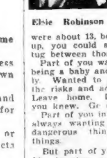
Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

GOING-ON AND GOING-BACK

When you stop to think, you get bewildered and blue. You wonder what life is all about. No one knows the whole answer to that question, but we know enough to serve our purpose.



Elsie Robinson

Life is all about life. Life is all about growing. Going on. Life is always a battle between going-on and going-back.

Once you were constantly conscious of that battle. When you were about 13, beginning to grow up, you could actually feel the tug between those two desires.

Part of you wanted to get over being a baby and grow up quickly. Wanted to go into life and the risks and adventures of life. Leave home. Leave everybody you knew. Go out, all alone.

Part of you in those days was always wanting to do new and dangerous things, growing up things.

But part of you wanted, terribly, to stay a baby. Do the things you always had done, love the same people, stay in the same places. Part of you shrank in terror from the thought of growing up.

That is how you felt at thirteen. And you think you've left that part of you behind you. You're thirty-three now, or forty-five or sixty-three. You're sure that you're grown up.

But you aren't. We never quite free ourselves from that thirteen-year-old conflict. From the cradle to the grave, life seems to be a battle between going-on and going-back. The battle seems to change, but it never does, really.

You may not be crying with homesickness and forty-three-though many of us are! You may not want to "play house." Ellen with your doll dishes under the old pine arbor. You may not hanker, Bill, to play hookey and go off with the gang down to the old swimming hole. But you're still hanging on to childhood in other ways—still trying to run away from life.

You run away into movies and beauty shop, now, Ellen. Instead of into fairy tales. You have play games with bridge scores instead of doll dishes. You build up a little world of your own which is as unreal as the world you build in that old rose arbor—a world of memories or make-believe.

And you've a make-believe world, too, Bill. A make-believe world of business and sport. It all sounds very mature; you honestly believe that you've become a rough, tough, two-fisted guy.

But it isn't, and you haven't. Inside you're still a half-baked kid with as many fears as you had at 12, with as many things that get your goat.

Once you both ran away from the real world of Doing Dishes and Hoeing Weeds. Now you're both running away from the real world of hunger and hate which clamors all around you. You don't want to think about that world. You refuse to be responsible for it. You're afraid to touch it, afraid even to admit that it exists.

So you take refuge in your Nice Little Business. Or your Lovely Little Home. Or Travel. Or Society. You exchange beauty creams, or stock market tips, as once you exchanged glass beads and fish bait.

Or perhaps you retreat still further. There were times, at 13, when you wouldn't play with the other kids; when you'd go off alone by yourself and mope, or dream, or sniffle with self-pity.

Today you still have your dreams and your mopes, only now you call it "being exclusive" or "being different."

You sneer at the world its speed and stupidity, its cruelty and vulgarity. You think God you can "get away from it all." You take refuge in some hobby, or cult, or fad.

And there are those who surrender completely; who seek oblivion in sickness, in drugs, in insanity or suicide.

But no matter how hard you work or play or dream in your effort to escape reality, there come times of clutching terror. You feel you're getting nothing out of life.

You're lonely, bewildered, blue —disgusted with everything and everybody. Disgusted, most of all, with yourself.

And these are actually your healthiest moments. For in these moments you feel life rebelling at your cowardice; urging you to forget yourself and your petty interests and take part in the world around you; challenging you to grow up.

Life is always a battle between going-on and going-back. Every day, every hour, you decide one way or the other. How are you deciding NOW?

Stars and Stripes

In North Carolina an intoxicated lady beat up four men. Hell hath no fury like a woman "corned."

"ALL DUE TO WEATHER

"What's that big guy so steamed up about?"

"He ain't steamed up; he's just fulls hot air."

According to Administrator Hopkins, 4,000,000 families have had relief, and at Uncle Sam's two-inch counter you don't have to buy a glass of beer to get something to eat.

So they're not going to scrap the Mauretania after all. She may no' be able to run as fast as the Rex and the Europa, but she still has as fine a pair of sea legs as ever adorned any ocean queen.

Human Side of the News; 'Trusters' Pain Borah

By Edwin C. Hill

Mr. Borah of Idaho doesn't think much of the Wonder Boys of Washington. The Brain Trusters give him a pain in the neck. And he is able, without too much strain, to conceal his enthusiasm for the New Dealers generally.

Almost as good at timing his political strokes as the gentleman in the White House, the Idaho senator waited until what he sensed was the psychological moment before casting wreaths of the wild raspberry around the necks of the professors who point the way to the millennium.

He comes right out with the blunt statement that they aren't good Americans at all, but a funny lot with quite un-American notions.

He sees the traditional and constitutional American liberties being undermined and broken down, and, by inference at least, ignores the emphatic statement made recently over the radio by President Roosevelt that both the spirit and letter of democratic government and the Bill of Rights will be preserved.

GOOD ANTAGONIST

Now, Bill Borah is not an antagonist to despise or underestimate.

One doubts very much if any man or any set of men can accomplish much for months to come, at least, toward dimming the star of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

But if anybody can dull even slightly the glamour which surrounds the President, like the auras in mediaeval religious paintings, that somebody would be the hard-hitting, brilliant-spoken gentleman from Boise City, the second best orator in the United States.

The first best (in the opinion of this writer) is the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, Charles Evans Hughes, and it was largely by the magic of their oratory that Hoover won so handsomely in 1928.

No, the Democratic political chiefs may be quite untroubled by the attacks made on the new deal by such as Ogden Mills and Dr. Fess and other Republican cheerleaders.

The astute Charley Michaelson, publicity wizard for the Democratic party, may grin tolerantly when Chairman Fletcher rape the Administration, and Big Jim Farley may look pained when wicked persons hint that patronage is just as important to him as purity, but when Borah gets up on his hind legs and howls, they take notice. It is a harbinger of trouble to come.

PACKS A PUNCH

In one short address Borah packed a bigger punch than the regular Republicans had been able to put into a hundred speeches and articles for the past six months. He attacked the Administration in its weakest spot—in its beaureaucratic appendix.

One phrase alone of that address of Borah's deserves preservation. It is simply that needsome, irritating, confusing, undermining, destructive thing called Bureaucracy." He was describing broadly the present regime in Washington.

He is a bad man to go up against Borah, even though he is a lone wolf. Always he has been the "one wolf." He was Theodore Roosevelt's floor manager in 1912 Republican convention.

He battled for the Lord, but he was late for Armageddon. He spoke mildly for Harding's election, but declined to run on the same ticket with Coolidge. He helped to put Herbert Hoover in the White House—and left him there at the front door.

What manner of man is this most interesting personality in all Congress? No one could ever mistake him for any person except himself. His square head, his dark eyebrows almost meeting above his short nose and shading his keen but kindly eyes; his long upper lip, firm mouth, strong, cleft chin; his thick hair parted in the middle and growing rather long at the back —all are peculiarly his.

His eyes are blue with black pupils that give vividness and intensity to his expression. His voice is deep and mellow, and he gives the right value to words, with a shading of tone. He would have made a first rate actor or minister. For the fanaticism of the evangelist is combined in this remarkable man with the emotionalism of the actor.

WALKER IN LONDON

Happily established at Dorking, England, the debonaire Jimmy Walker shuns the night life and is rarely seen in London. He works sporadically in his cheerful, leisurely fashion, but expresses fear that something will turn up which will compel him to return to a more strenuous life.

"I feel that I am just beginning to live," says the erstwhile mayor who certainly has no evidence of feeling otherwise while in New York. Newspapermen from London say he has gained ten pounds.

One wonders if Jimmy, in a reminiscent vein, doesn't philosophize on how deeply rooted he is in the soil of New York, and if a race of nostalgia doesn't creep into his soul at times.

Apropos of nostalgia, perhaps there is more of it felt in New York than in any other place in the world, considering that New York is a mecca for humanity from the four corners of the earth.

Some of these migrators come to learn, some to play, but most come with the idea that it is easier to get rich in New York than anywhere else. The depression has taught them that it is just as easy to become poor.

However, it is a chance they take, and some achieve their aim.

White of hair and bent with age, sometimes they loom loftily in their particular fields, but almost always there is a magnet pulling at them, for in the end they come back in the soil that calls. They may have fame and money, but they are not quite content.

Elevating Our Bar

The Federal Bar Association, it is reported, is opening a campaign "to increase the public's esteem for lawyers and halt the insidious propaganda which undermines and unjustly weakens a lawyer's status"—or words to that effect.

Well, the average layman will wish the lawyers all success in their attempts.

But if a word of advice to the legal profession is admissible, there is one way in which it can "increase the public's esteem" for it, and one only.

That is, to clean out the percentage of shysters and crooks who now give the entire bar—no matter how worthy it may be in general—a black eye.

This percentage of undesirables would ruin the reputation of a company of archangels, let alone a bar association.

There is no crime so foul that SOME lawyer cannot be found to defend the criminal, not only within the legal safeguards to which even a criminal is entitled, but by every shift, evasion, technicality and improper influence in the calendar.

That is what gives the law the unsavory reputation which it now has, and that is what gives lawyers a similar if unmerited reputation along with it.

Only when the honest majority of the legal profession takes effective action against the dishonest minority will law regain the standing which it should have.

And if that seems harsh language, it is merely what any reputable lawyer will tell you privately.

Needs Your Interest

Do you find appeals for good government tiresome? You ought not to.

Good government needs your interest. Certainly you have felt the bad effects of poor government, if not at one time, then at another.

Colonel Benjamin A. Franklin, former president of Associated Industries of Massachusetts, puts the case for better government plainly.

"We have too many laws," he declares, "too little enforcement, too much politics.

"Government is too expensive. It clogs progress. It is becoming a racket.

"Government is for the people who are governed. The simpler it is the better it is.

"Reform, of course, to expect improvement.

"Unless you fight for it."

Hostess to Legion

Brockton will be hostess to the American Legion of Massachusetts, which holds its 16th annual convention in the Shoe City August 16, 17 and 18.

Brockton is so close to Boston that, in these days of the automobile, a great convention in the shoe center is almost as handy for Bostonians to attend as if it were right here.

Certainly thousands of residents of Greater Boston will "take in" the Legion's big days. The Legion convention itself will rival the annual Brockton Fair as a stellar 1934 attraction.
